

ALL RUSSIA IS IN STATE OF FERMENT

Governor General Trepoff
Issues Pacific Appeal
To Workingmen.

MANY REFORMS PROMISED

British Are Blamed For Revolutionary Movement
—Finland Quiet.

(By Cable to The Age.)

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—Contrary to expectation, the first move of the newly appointed governor general of St. Petersburg is pacific in character. It takes the form of a proclamation jointly signed by General Trepoff and M. Kokovtzeff, the minister of finance, telling the strikers that they have been led into trouble by evil-disposed persons, and that their best interests will be served by peaceful representations to the government. The workmen are also assured that the emperor has ordered the framing of certain laws for their benefit and the creation of a system of state institutions that will protect them from want in case of sickness or disability.

The fears of serious trouble in Moscow were not realized. The only authenticated instance of anything approaching violence there was in the dispersal of a crowd of about 3,000 workmen by Cossacks. So far as is known there were no casualties.

From Finland anti-Russian demonstrations are reported, a collision between a crowd of 10,000 persons and troops and police resulting in the wounding of about 30 Finns. In Finland the agitation has nothing to do with the labor question but is purely political in character.

Various political educational and mercantile bodies in Russia are adopting declarations in favor of an elective representative legislative body, and denouncing misrule under autocracy.

Though the strikes have been spreading to various towns, the situation is not acute anywhere. The great demonstration with an accompaniment of bloodshed which was anticipated at Moscow did not occur, and the strike in the ancient capital has not spread rapidly, only about 20,000.

Fought Fire in a Blizzard.
New York, Jan. 26.—While the worst storm of many winters howled around them a dozen fire companies, under the personal direction of Chief Croker, for eight hours fought a stubborn fire in Kips Bay brewery, at First avenue and Thirty-eighth street. All the men suffered intensely from long exposure to the chilling blasts, and five of them were more or less seriously hurt by being caught beneath a wall of the high brick building which toppled over into the street. The property loss is $150,000.

CAPTAIN GRIDLEY TO GET MONUMENT

(By Telegraph to The Age.)
Washington, Jan. 26.—Senator Alger introduced a bill appropriating $5,000 for the erection of a monument to the memory of Captain C. V. Gridley, who commanded Admiral Dewey's flagship Olympia at the battle of Manila bay. In connection with the presentation of the bill Senator Alger had read a letter written by Mrs. Gridley to President Roosevelt. In this letter Mrs. Gridley stated that at 30 years of age she is working as a clerk in one of the executive departments of Washington, and is financially unable to erect the monument herself. She therefore asks the president to exercise his influence in the interest of the monument. She also mentions the death by accident of her husband.

SENATE IS TO HEAR TREATY

President Will Ask Approval
For San Domingan Agreement.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Washington, Jan. 26.—It can be stated by authority that it is and has been the purpose of the administration, before taking any action toward carrying out the agreement just concluded with San Domingo, to submit such agreement or protocol to the United States senate for its approval. Commander Dillingham is understood to have sailed from San Domingo City for home. He will come by way of Cuba, bringing with him the text of the agreement. It is obviously impossible, therefore, for the San Domingan agreement to come before the senate through the action of the administration for at least a week. The only reason why any statement was made by the department relative to its scope was based on an apprehension that the agreement itself would be misunderstood by the public, which it was feared would not clearly understand the causes which led up to it and the limitations embodied in the document upon the relations between the United States and San Domingo.

SPANISH HONDURAS TO HAVE REVOLUTION

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 26.—Advices received here by the steamer Espana are to the effect that a revolution is brewing at Puerto Cortez and other parts of Spanish Honduras. The government at Tegucigalpa has taken strenuous steps to forestall an outbreak. The expected revolution is of an internal nature and trouble is momentarily expected. At Puerto Cortez the natives are organizing for a revolt.

WHOLE LAND IN GRIP OF STORM KING

New York, Boston And Other
Atlantic Coast Cities
Snowbound.

ALL TRAFFIC IS TIED UP
Intense Cold Causes Fatalities in Numerous Localities.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

New York, Jan. 26.—The great metropolis is recovering slowly from the effects of the blizzard. Not since the blizzard of March 17, 1888, by which all storms are estimated as great or small, has New York been so completely snowbound as it is today. The city itself is lying under a foot of snow that in many places has been banked up by the wind to a height of several feet. Surface travel for a time was abandoned, overhead transit was irregular and slow, and it remained for the underground roads to carry the hundreds of thousands of workers to and from the crowded downtown districts. Not a vessel of any kind has sailed from or arrived at this port in more than 24 hours, and at the port of Boston only one arrival was reported, and that a coastwise steamer. At Sandy Hook and Quarantine the gale blew at 60 miles an hour, and a number of vessels are reported at anchor there.

The entire coast line from the Delaware capes north has been in the grasp of a storm which, because of the heavy fall of snow, the intensity of cold and the force of the gale, has exceeded in severity anything experienced in years. Inland from Maine throughout the New England states and the middle Atlantic states all reports indicate a most complete winter tieup. Everywhere railroad traffic is delayed; reports of disasters to shipping are coming in, and with the rapidly falling thermometer much suffering must ensue. So severe was the storm in this city that even during the day hours several persons were frozen to death or died from exhaustion. The hospitals, the police stations and the houses of refuge are overcrowded.

YELLOW FEVER PROVES FATAL

American Legation at Panama
Issues Sanitary Bulletin.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Panama, Jan. 26.—A bulletin issued by the American legation announced one death and six cases of suspected yellow fever on board the cruiser Boston. The sanitary staff is investigating the causes and fumigating the ship. From July 18 to Jan. 20, 18 cases and three deaths from yellow fever have been reported at Panama and Colon. Negotiations have been concluded between Governor Davis, Minister Barrett and the Panama government under which the canal zone officials will assume complete charge of the sanitation of the city.

LADRONES WERE LED BY FAMOUS OUTLAW

(By Cable to The Age.)

Manila, Jan. 26.—Additional details regarding the attack by ladrones on the town of San Francisco de Malabon, in which Contract Surgeon J. A. O'Neill was killed, show that the ladrones numbered 300. They were led by the famous outlaws Montalón and Felix Ardo, who were aided by two American negroes. The ladrones were armed with over 120 rifles. Besides Surgeon O'Neill one private of the constabulary was killed and three were seriously wounded. The home of former Governor Triaz was attacked, and his wife and two children abducted. The municipal treasury was looted of $2,000, and 25 Remington rifles were taken by the ladrones. The rebels were dressed in constabulary uniforms, and this fact created considerable confusion. The scouts and the constabulary now have the band surrounded at the pueblo of Perez Damorinas. There were four hours of fierce fighting, the complete result of which has not yet been reported.

SAYS BILL STRIKES AT GENERAL MILES

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Washington, Jan. 26.—In connection with the consideration of the army appropriation bill there was an animated discussion in the senate of the assignment of General Miles to service in charge of the Massachusetts state militia. The controversy was begun by Mr. Lodge, who criticized in sharp language the provision of the army bill prohibiting the awarding of extra pay or allowances to retired officers assigned to active service when they exceed those of a major on the active list. Mr. Lodge declared the provision was directed at General Miles and was most unfair. Messrs. Spooner, Platt and Money contended that the enactment would have the effect of limiting the salaries of all retired officers assigned to active duty to a major's pay, regardless of rank.

MARSHAL SEIZES TRACTION LINE

Southern Ohio Electric Road Troubled by Lack of Cash.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 26.—To satisfy a judgment of $10,000 obtained by Edward Brown of Ironton, O., Deputy United States Marshal Huwe seized the entire properties of the Camden and Interstate Railway company, operating a traction line between Ironton and Hanging Rock, O. Judgment was obtained before Judge Thompson in October for $10,000. Edward Brown, a miner, having sued for $25,000 damages on account of having had his leg cut off by a car. The properties seized include the tracks, electrical plant, barns, rolling stock, machine shops, tools, tanks and stations. The seizure was made because the company failed to pay the judgment and neglected to file a sufficient appeal bond.

BOILER EXPLOSION KILLS THREE MEN

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Terre Haute, Ind., Jan. 26.—Three men were killed and one fatally injured in a boiler explosion that wrecked the engine rooms of the Standard Wheel company's plant. The dead: Levi Whittaker, Thomas Patterson and Horace G. Colvin. Fatally injured: George Davis. The victims were all firemen employed in the boiler rooms. Davis was taken out of the ruins shortly after the explosion and then to the hospital. The body of Whittaker was terribly mangled. The bodies of Colvin and Patterson have not yet been recovered. The shock of the explosion was distinctly felt in all parts of the city. Parts of the machinery and building were blown three squares from the scene. Fire broke out in the ruins, but it was soon controlled by the department.

CZAR'S PROMISE EFFECTIVE

Workmen Promised
Short Hours--Cossacks Kill Thirty Finns.

(By Cable to The Age.)

Libau, Russia, Jan. 26.—(Bulletin) —The workmen here are being compelled to leave the factories and mills by the more militant faction of the strikers. The telegraph lines have been damaged.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—(1:10 p. m.)—(Bulletin.)—At most of the mills and factories where the men appeared for work, the employers decided not to resume until Monday. This is the case with the Russian Westinghouse company.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 26.—The proclamation of general Trepoff, offering shorter hours to the workmen is believed to have been the chief reason of the abatement of the trouble, and many of the workmen today applied for their old positions, but the factories will not open until Monday.

The situation at Moscow and at other points is satisfactory to the authorities and it is the belief also, that the trouble in Finland, where 30 people were wounded last night by Cossacks, in a political demonstration demanding home rule, is practically over. On the whole the authorities here express themselves as very much pleased today with the outlook.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 26.—Some thirty persons were wounded last night of whom nine were taken to the hospital. Three are severely wounded. Two youths had their scalps cut and a third was struck in the stomach with a baton. The demonstration is slackening.

HARGIS CASE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY

Investigation Into Killing
Cockrill Bears
Fruit.

SHERIFF IS ALSO HELD

William Britton Now on Trial
For The Same
Crime.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 26.—A special grand jury found indictments against James Hargis, county judge of Breathitt county; Alex Hargis, former state senator; Elbert Hargis of Jackson, brother of the other two; Ed Callahan, sheriff of Breathitt county, and Jesse Spicer, a former deputy sheriff under Callahan, all charged with conspiring to bring about the death of James Cockrill, city marshal of Jackson. Cockrill was shot from a window of the court house at Jackson in July, 1902. He was brought to this city and died in a local hospital. The Breathitt grand jury failed to indict. Under the old English law, which has recently been sustained by the court of appeals, indictments may be found in another county for a crime which is begun elsewhere and completed in that county. Under this law William Britton was indicted on the charge of killing Cockrill, and his trial is now in progress here.

All of the men indicted here are now in Jackson Bench warrants have been issued and a special bailiff will serve them. The Hargis brothers are wealthy, and prominent in politics.

Judge Hargis, Senator Hargis and Ed Callahan are defendants in the $100,000 damage suit brought by Mrs. J. B. Marcum, widow of the United States commissioner, who was assassinated in the Jackson court house in May, 1903. She charged that they conspired to have her husband killed, and sued for $100,000 damages. The jury awarded her $8,000 against Judge Hargis and Ed Callahan. They have been granted an appeal from this verdict to the court of appeals. Mrs. Marcum also was granted an appeal of the case as it affected Senator Hargis and Judge B. F. French. Curtis Jett, nephew of the Hargis brothers, is serving a life sentence for the murder of Marcum. An appeal is pending in the case of Curtis Jett for the assassination of Cockrill. Tom White is under life sentence for killing Marcum, and pending a decision of the court of appeals on a motion for a rehearing is in jail at Covington.

BUSTER WANTED TO BUY A DRINK

But The Bar Was Closed and "Buster's" Hopes Were Blasted.

An amusing incident is going the rounds on the streets concerning "Buster Brown" at the Hotel Standen after the show Wednesday evening. It seems Buster is endowed with a thirst like many other persons of twice his size and it seems the thirst has increased in an inverse ratio with his body.

"Buster" wanted a drink after the show but drinks are not supposed to be served in Coshocton after ten o'clock. Occasionally they are served but that is a different story. "Buster" was unable to get a drink and he became exceedingly mad.

It is said his dignity asserted itself in a surprising manner and that he declared he was old enough to buy a drink even if he didn't look it. The bar was closed and "Buster" had to go to bed without even a glass of buttermilk to quench his thirst.

CHAPTER XXIX.

THERE is an aphorism to the effect that one cannot spend and have; also a saying about the whirlwind, both of which in time came home to the land baron. For several generations the Mauville family, bearing one of the proudest names in Louisiana, had held marked prestige under Spanish and French rule, while extensive plantations indicated the commercial ascendancy of the patrimonial ancestors. The thrift of his forefathers, however, passed lightly over Edward Mauville. Sent to Paris by his mother, a widow, who could deny him nothing, in the course of a few years he had squandered two plantations and several hundred negroes. Her death placed him in undisputed possession of the residue of the estate, when, finding the exacting details of commerce irksome, in a moment of weakness he was induced to dispose of some of his possessions to Yankee speculators who had come in with the flood of northern energy. Most of the money thus realized he placed in loose investments, while the remainder gradually disappeared in indulging his pleasures.

At this critical stage in his fortunes, or misfortunes, the patron's legacy had seemed timely, and his trip to the north followed. But from a swarm of creditors to a nest of antirenters was out of the frying pan into the fire, hastening his return to the Crescent City, where he was soon forced to make an assignment of the remaining property. A score of hungry lawyers hovered around the sinking estate, greedily jealous lest some one of their number should battle too gluttonously at this general collation. It was the one topic of interest in the dusty, dusty court-house until the end appeared with the following announcement in the local papers:

"Announce! Vente importante de negres! Mauville estate in bankruptcy!"

And thereafter were specified the different lots of negroes to be sold. Coincident with these disasters came news from the north regarding his supposedly lumenee interests in New York state. A constitutional convention had abolished all feudal tenures and freed the fields from baronial burdens. At a breath-like a house of cards—the northern heritage was swept away and about all that remained of the princely was the worthless ancient deed itself, representing one of the largest colonial grants.

But even the sale of the negroes and his other merchandise and property failed to satisfy his clamorous creditors or to pay his gambling debts. Those obligations at cards it was necessary to meet, so he moved out of his bachelor apartments, turned over his expensive furnishings and bric-a-brac to the gamblers and snapped his fingers at the overcautious constables and lawyers. His new home was in the house of an aged quadroon who had been a servant in his family many years ago—how long no one seemed to remember—and who had been his nurse before she had received her freedom. She enjoyed the distinction of being feared in the neighborhood; her fetiches had a power no other witch's possessed, and many of the negroes would have done anything to have possessed these infallible charms, save crossing her threshold to get them. Mauville, when he found fortune slipping away from him and ruin staring him in the face, had been glad to transfer his abode to this unhallowed place; going into hiding, as it were, until the storm should blow by, when he expected to emerge, confident as ever.

But inaction soon chafed his restless nature and drove him forth in spite of seeing only the rotating eyes of a pick-aninny fastened upon him, hurried through the entrance. Hanging upon the walls were red and green pods and bunches of dried herbs of unquestionable virtue belonging to the old crone's pharmacopoeia. Mauville slowly ascended the dark stairs and reached his retreat, a small apartment, with furniture of cane-work and floor covered with sea grass, the ceiling low and the windows narrow, opening upon a miniature balcony that offered space for one and no more.

"Is dat yo', honey?" said an adoring voice on the landing.

"Yes, auntie," replied the land baron as an old crone emerged from an ill lighted recess and stood before him. "Any one been to see me, mammy?"

"Only dat Mexican gemmen—dat gemmen been here befo' you take yo' message about de troops; when dey go from New Orleans; how many dey am."

"You know that, auntie?" he asked quickly. "You know that?"

"Yes, honey," she answered, shaking her head. "Yo' be berry careful, Mar's'r Edward."

"What did he want?" said the land baron quickly.

"He gib me dis." And the crone handed her visitor a slip of paper on which a few words were written. "What dat mean?"

"It means I am going away, mammy," pushing back his chair.

"Gwine away," she repeated. "When's yo' gwine?"

"Tomorrow; perhaps tonight even; down the river, auntie," rising and surveying himself in a mirror.

"How long yo' gwine away foh?"

"Perhaps forever, auntie."

"Not foh good, Mar's'r Edward, not foh good?" He nodded, and she broke into loud wallings. "Yo's gwine and yo' old mammy 'll see yo' no moh—no moh! I knows why yo's gwine, Mar's'r Edward. I've heard yo' talkin' about her in yo' sleep. But yo' stay, and yo' mammy has a love charm foh yo'. Den she's yo's foh suah."

"Tshaw, mammy! Do you think I would fly from a woman? Do I look as though I needed a charm?"

"No. She mus' worship yo'!" cried the infatuated crone.

"We're losing time, mammy," he exclaimed. "Stop this nonsense, and go pack a few things for me. I have some letters to write."

The old woman reluctantly obeyed, and the land baron penned a somewhat lengthy epistle to his one time master in Paris, the Abbe Moneau, whose disapproval of the Anglo-Saxon encroachments—witness Louisiana—and zeal for the colonization of the Latin races are matters of history. Having completed his epistle, the land baron placed it in the old crone's hand to mail with, "If that man calls again tell him I'll meet him tonight," and, leaving the room, shot through the doorway, once more rapidly walking down the shabby thoroughfare. The aged negro woman stumbled out upon the balcony and gazed after the departing figure.

CHAPTER XXX.

ON a certain evening about a month later the tropical rains had flooded the thoroughfares until St. Charles street needed but a Rialto and a little imagination to convert it into a watery highway of another Venice, while, as for Canal street, its name was as applicable as though it were spanned by a Bridge of Sighs.

Straws, editor and rhymester, was seated on the semioriental, semi-French gallery of the little cafe called the Veranda sipping his absinth and smoking a cheroot. Before him was paper partly covered with well nigh illegible verbiage and a bottle of ink, while a goose quill, tool of the tuncful nise, was expectantly poised in midair.

"Confound it!" he said to himself. "I can't write in the attic any more since Celestina has gone, and apparently I can't write away from it. But I must stop thinking or I'll never complete this poem. Now to make my mind a blank, a fitting receptacle to receive inspiration."

The bard's figure swayed uncertainly on the stool. In the lively race through a sonnet it was often of late a matter of doubt with Straws whether Bacchus or Calliope would prevail at the finish, and tonight the second god had had a perceptible start.

"Nappy, eh?" said a voice at his elbow as a dripping figure approached, deposited his hat on one chair and himself in another. The newcomer had a long, Gothic face and a merry-wide expression.

The left hand of the poet waved mechanically, imposing silence. The quill dived suddenly to paper, trailed twice across it and then was cast aside as Straws looked up.

"Yes," he replied to the other's interrogation. "It's all on account of Celestina's leaving me. You ought to see my room." The poet sighed. "And you, Phasma; how are you feeling?"

"Better as a judge."

"Then you shall judge of this last complete," pronounced Straws quickly. "It has cost me much effort. The other are some things which should be sacred even from us, Phasma. But what is to be done when the editor in chief commands? Ours not to reason why! The poem is a monody on the tragedy at the theater."

"At the St. Charles?" said Phasma musingly. "As I passed it was closed. It seemed early for the performance to be over. Yet the theater was dark; all the lights had gone out."

"More than the lights went out," answered Straws gravely. "A life went out!"

"I don't exactly—oh, you refer to Miss Carew's farewell?"

"No; to Barnes!"

"Barnes?" exclaimed his surprised listener.

"Yes; he is dead; gone out like the snuff of a candle! Died in harness, before the footlights! He acted as if he were dazed while the play was in progress, and I could not but notice it, standing in the wings. The prompter spoke of it to me. Even Miss Carew rallied him gently between acts on his subdued manner."

"This is our last performance together," he said absently. She gave him a reproachful look and he added quickly: "Do I appear gloomy, my dear? I never felt happier."

"At the end of the second act he seemed to arouse himself, when she, as Isabella, said, 'I'll fit his mind to death, for his soul's rest.' He gazed at her long and earnestly, his look caressing her wherever she moved. Beginning the prison scene with spirit, he had proceeded to

"Reason thus with life: If I do lose thee I do lose a thing That none but fools would keep!"

when suddenly he threw up his arms and fell upon the stage, his face toward the audience. With a cry I shall never forget Miss Carew rushed to him and took his head in her arms, gazing at him wildly and calling to him piteously.

ly. The curtain went down, but nothing could be done, and life quickly ebbed. Once only his lips moved—"Your mother—there!—where the play never ends!" and it was over."

"It is like a romance," said Phasma finally at the conclusion of this narration.

Patterns for Misses' Box Plaited Costume by Martha Dean

We have had so many requests for a misses' box plaited costume that we are showing one today that should please both the young lady and her mother, who, no doubt, is as much interested. It is not an easy matter to find a suitable style for a girl of fourteen or thereabout. The tendency is strongly toward the older styles, but anything that is childish is equally bad. In the design shown here we have a modish costume which has supplanted all others for general wear. Tucks in box plaited effect are used in both blouse and skirt. The pattern provides for a lining, which may or may not be used. The skirt is in five gore style, with tucks stitched to flounce depth. The mode is well suited to all lightweight materials in cotton or silk.

TO HELP AMERICAN TRADE.
President Roosevelt has given the strongest endorsement to the suggestions of Assistant Secretary Loomis of the Department of State, in favor of a proposed staff of experts to study foreign trade conditions; and in his special message to the Senate on the subject, the President says that in his opinion while the measure proposed is a modest and more or less tentative one, involving comparatively slight expense, it promises important and far reaching consequences in the judgment strengthening of our whole foreign service in the interest of trade, and the gradual development of capacities in it, but imperfectly available as yet, to make it fully adequate to the demands of our productive energy as a nation. Speaking of the proposed work, as an auxiliary to the regular consular service, the President says:

"It is generally admitted that in recent years the consular service, whatever may be its defects of system, has developed a commercial utility which has been of great practical value. It would be most regrettable, however, if this improvement, which has been brought about by the zeal and energy of individual consuls rather than by the efforts of the service as a whole, and also to a large extent, by the special direction of the Department of State, should be accounted as satisfying even present requirements, not to speak of the prospective demands of a rapidly expanding commerce. For this reason, I cordially commend to the consideration of the Congress the recommendation of the acting secretary of state looking to the gradual systematizing and equipment of the whole foreign service, by simple and inexpensive means as an auxiliary responsive at all points to what may reasonably be expected of it by the great industrial and commercial interests which are so deeply concerned in enlarging their share of the world's trade. The recommendation is that provision be made by the appointment of six special agents, to be called commercial attaches, who shall visit the different countries and make a study of industrial conditions with a view to suggestions modifications and changes in the existing plans of our foreign commerce. There is to be cooperation between the Department of State, and of Commerce and of Labor, in collecting the desired information. The expense involved is comparatively small, and there is no doubt the results would be highly important and beneficial to our commercial interests.

Islands Begin to Look Like Civilization

Capt. Charles Compton Writes of The Philippines And Their Wonderful Advancement---Tribute to Gov. Wright.

Captain Charles B. Compton, formerly of this city but at present commissioned in the constabulary or regular army of the Philippine Islands, finds the other side of the world much to his liking as is evidenced by the fact that he has spent about five years in Uncle Sam's new possessions.

An interesting letter, the following extract from which The Age is permitted to publish, was received by his father, Capt. J. M. Compton this week. It requires six weeks for a letter to reach Coshocton.
Bacolod, Negros, P. I., Dec. 10, 1904
"Dear Father:—I am now at my new station, as you will observe from the above heading and have been pretty busy for the past few days getting property and papers straightened out. I took charge Dec. 7th after a month's leave of absence, most of which time I spent traveling about on Negros Island at Silay and elsewhere. Did not get to visit my old friend Don Diego, a former governor of this island, as he wired me he was going away to purchase some machinery and has not yet returned. Traveling is slow over here. I will visit him later. Am located at Bacolod which is about ten miles south of Silay, my old station.

"During the middle of November Governor Wright and party, including the new commissioner, Cameron Forbes, came to Bacolod to spend two days on a tour of the southern islands. A storm came up the second day and they could not get back to their steamer, which laid out to sea about two miles. Hence their visit was prolonged to four days and we and our little Brown Brothers entertained them with banquets, balles (dances) and theatres until when they left we were about played out physically and financially.

"You should hear some of the flowery speeches these distinguished Filipinos get off at a banquet when they get a few cups of champagne under their belts. The Spanish lingo is of all the most flowery and fervent though often insincere. Gov. Wright knows how to sift the grain from the chaff and has even learned to come back at them for a while in the same tactics but he generally concludes with a straight way talk that gives them food for thought for many days after the champagne has left their heads. The first speaker at the banquet compared Gov. Wright in eulogistic terms as the 'Medico' (doctor) who had come to visit the patient and advise, etc. Gov. Wright in his reply admitted the application and said that no matter how skillful the doctor he could effect no cure unless the patient would take the medicine—that medicine sometimes was bitter, etc., and then he proceeded to tell them among other things to get their shoulders to the wheel and aid us and quit talking 'independence.' Gov. Wright is not the scholarly statesman and diplomat that Gov. Taft is but you may rest assured he is fully competent to handle the situation over here as governor. His visit was pleasant and profitable to all concerned. He was absent from Manila on his tour about a month. He started out immediately after the election, a most opportune time.

"From Valle Hermosa, Negros where I used to be stationed, I could see Cebu, and the hills of Cebu, thirty miles away, seemed very dry, barren and uninviting, but I found the contrary when I got over there. There is a new road across the island of Cebu built by an American supervisor which is the finest country road I have seen anywhere. Although it passes over the mountains, yet it passes up a valley and winds around the hills in gradual ascents, made of limestone and passing through a green fertile valley of most beautiful natural scenery, fields of corn, tho' scrubby (the seed seems to have run out as farmers say) with thousands of acres of hemp plants, which is very difficult to distinguish from the banana plant. Hemp is the principal product of Cebu and in Cebu City harbor ships from London, Boston and elsewhere are seen loading hemp. This road passes at one point in the mountains along the edge of a canon. Here my American guide stopped and we dismounted. He asked me if I thought I could throw a stone across the canon. It appeared to me to be no wider than the river below the aqueduct at home across which I used to throw stones, so I tried it several times but, to my great surprise, the stones would fall in the stream about 500 feet below us, not half way across.

The air is so clear up here and the distance so much greater than it seems that any person would be deceived. It looks about 300 feet across and is nearly 800.

"All along the west coast we passed through towns at an average distance of eight miles apart where the people were apparently very hospitable and glad to see us, but I have my doubts as to their sincerity. Between towns it was necessary to carry a guard of five to ten police or scout soldiers. This island like Samar Leyte is infested with a class of fanatics mostly from the mountains. We call them Pulayanes, (poo-lah-han-ey).

"In Panay and Negros we have 'fairones,' which is Spanish for thief or robber, they live in small bands in the mountains of ten to thirty with a few guns and make irregular descents down in the lower country for the purpose generally of robbing carabons and cattle. But these pulayanes of Cebu are mountaineers who get together occasionally under the leadership of some shrewd old ladro, a native soldier or disgruntled insurrecto who organizes them, gives them each a small cloth badge, or amulet anting-anting which he the leader blesses and suspends around their necks, which protects them from all ills and makes them bullet proof. Then before they go into battle they swallow pieces of paper which have been blessed. This protects them from the American bullet, but in case they get hit they are made to believe in three days they will rise again provided they get within a circle which the chief draws off just before battle. Poor ignorant fools! I saw a place where 300 or 400 of them were bleaching their bones piled up in the charm circle. They do not seem to know what they are fighting for—not exactly against the government nor for it, in fact they don't know what government is.

"Next summer I will receive a leave of absence of three months, besides the time required to make a trip to the United States and back, and I am contemplating a visit home. Love to all.

—Chas. B. Compton.

Great Britain's Coal Supply.
London, Jan. 26.—The report of the royal commission on the coal supplies of the United Kingdom calculates the available resources of the proved coal fields at 100,000,000,000 tons, which at the present increasing rate of output will last about 450 years. The commissioners anticipate that owing to physical considerations the rate of the increase of the output will soon be slower, and will be followed by a period of stationary output, and then by a gradual decline, which will prolong the duration of the resources

Sage of The Age

A January Twilight.
The air is starred with snowy flakes,
The spruces prick the sky,
And not a lonely pine tree breaks
The silence with a sigh.
Between the wastes of level white
And the cloud-drift dim and gray,
In tassels of tender light
Beauty consoles the day.
They lose full many a scene like this,
Who flee our winter rude.
As hearts that turn from sorrow miss
Its hushed beatitude.

BUSTER BROWN STRIKES TOWN; ADDS LAUREL TO HIS CROWN

Cartoon Comedy Replete With Catchy Vaudeville Pleases an Immense Audience.

"Buster Brown" with Tige and all his friends, has come and gone, and the famous "Cartoon Comedy" has left a pleasant taste in the mouths of Coshocton theatre-goers.
Buster Brown is a musical comedy with plenty of each but paucity of plot. It is in fact a very excellent and high class vaudeville—one of the best things of the kind ever seen in Coshocton. The house was packed in fact it had been sold out two days before the attraction, and the performance merited the audience.
The company throughout is an excellent one, composed of nice looking men and women and there was a vim and dash about everything that carried the house by storm. The songs were new and catchy and well sung and there were lots of them. The specialties were fresh and surprising. The house was in one continuous laugh.

Buster Brown was well portrayed by Master Giovanni as a petted and mischievous child whose boon companion was his big Boston terrier, "Tige" and Jack Bell played the dog superbly. Master Giovanni is about the size of an eight year old boy, but is said to be 23 years old. He made a delightful boy anyhow.
But it was Marie Goodrich as Gladys the cook and Burt Jordan as the tramp that took the house by storm with their remarkable dancing. It would indeed be difficult to particularize, but perhaps the thing that made the biggest hit was when Buster prevailed on Tige to kiss his grandmother.
The company left today for Mansfield where they play tonight.

STOMACH TROUBLES COMMON NOW.

Winter Food and Living Strain Digestive Organs. Use Mi-o-na and Be Well.

The hearty food and overheating so common in winter, strain the stomach and digestive organs so that by this time the average person is out of health. It may be a simple headache, possibly sleeplessness, or a general tired, weak feeling but the chances are that the stomach is weak and cannot properly take care of the food, and as a result there is heartburn, indigestion, lack of energy and a general fagged out state.

The stomach needs health and strength. The various aches and pains that you have are the stomach's cry for help and its warning that it has been overworked. Give it strength by taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal, and it will soon do its work so promptly and naturally that you will not realize you have a stomach. There will be no acidity, no flatulency, no griping about the heart, no unpleasant cases, no furred tongue, no inflammation of the mucous membrane.

A 50c box of Mi-o-na will bring buoyancy of spirit in place of lassitude and despondency. It will help the overtaxed stomach to start fairly on the road to health. It will give the sleep so necessary to brain and nerve centers.

Ask C. E. Anderson, one of the most reliable druggists in this section to show you the strong guarantee under which he sells Mi-o-na. Use Mi-o-na and you can so eat what you want and all you want, for it will strengthen the weakest condition of your stomach and re-establish good digestion.

workmen being out, according to the latest reports.

Evidence accumulates that the strikers are supplied with money to meet their present needs. It is said that they have a fund of $2,000,000, some of which was supplied by German Socialists, but there is no way of verifying the stories. It is seriously believed in some quarters that money is being furnished from Japanese-British sources to bring on a revolution, or such internal complications as will compel the government to make peace. Reports say the strike is extending to Narva, Saratoff and Kharkoff.

The zemstvo of Taurida, at its first meeting of the year, unanimously adopted the following address to Emperor Nicholas: "We are strongly convinced that the fulfillment of all your great intentions for their inviolability can only be assured by the participation of elected representatives of the whole nation in the legislative power. We sincerely believe that in the union of the power of the state with that of the people can be found the only pledge for the complete development of the productive forces of the country. If you summon representatives of the nation to take part in legislation, finance and administrative control, and fulfillment of the law and the intentions of your Imperial majesty, you will make Russia powerful and invincible from without and flourishing with in her borders in the light of right and truth."

Obliging Russian Official.

Moscow, Jan. 26.—Captain Grove, the British consul, has called upon M. Roudeneff, the assistant police master, and requested an explanation of the posted telegram from London alleging that the disturbances at the Russian dockyards and arsenals were due to Anglo-Japanese instigation. M. Roudeneff produced the original telegram in evidence of good faith. Captain Grove stated that he would report the matter to the embassy at St. Petersburg, as he considered that the posting of the alleged telegram imperiled the lives of subjects of Great Britain who are employed in factories here. M. Roudeneff assured him that there would be absolutely no cause for apprehension, but assumed the responsibility for the publication. M. Roudeneff also offered Captain Grove personal satisfaction in a resort to arms.

Suspension Not General.

Moscow, Jan. 26.—There is complete tranquillity within the boundaries of this city, but the people are keeping indoors, owing to the official warning. The strike is spreading gradually, but thus far is confined to the smaller mills. The larger industrial concerns are being guarded in order to prevent the men employed there from being intimidated, but it is the belief that the strike will become general. There are no troops in sight in the city proper. The citizens are alarmed at the prospect of an eruption of hundreds of thousands of workmen and demand the proclamation of a state of siege. The Moscow garrison is no more than 20,000 strong.

Outbreak in Finland.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 26.—Although the crowds on the streets were smaller, there was severe fighting. Cossacks and police firing their revolvers. Some 30 persons were wounded, of whom nine were taken to the hospital. Three are severely wounded. Two youths had their scalp cut and a third was struck in the stomach with a bullet.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—A large portion of Chicago's business interests declared in favor of immediate rate legislation in line with the recommendations in President Roosevelt's message. The resolution containing the recommendations was passed by a joint committee representing the board of trade, Chicago Shippers' association and the Illinois Manufacturers' association. A copy of the resolution will be sent to the president and to congress.

Pactor Enjoined.

Williamsboro, Ky., Jan. 26.—The members of the Baptist church here were granted an injunction against Rev. V. E. Smith, pastor of the Lexington (Ky.) Baptist church, enjoining him from attending prayer meeting at the church in this city. Rev. Smith was formerly pastor of the church here and the members allege he would create a schism. Smith was an alternate from the state at large to the Chicago Republican convention.

An Open Letter to the Public FROM A WELL-KNOWN DRUGGIST

To Whom It May Concern:

Of late there has been a good deal of discussion in regard to advertised medicines and their value. We want to say to every man, woman and child in this vicinity that the most valuable preparation of cod liver oil—the best tonic, reconstructer, health restorer and strength-creator we have ever sold in our store is Vinol.

Vinol is not a patent medicine; it contains no injurious drugs, and it actually does contain all of the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, taken from fresh cod's livers, but without a drop of oil, and is delicious to the taste.

Vinol is recognized throughout the world as the greatest strength-creator for old people, weak, sickly women, children, nursing mothers, and after a severe sickness.

Vinol cures hacking coughs, chronic colds, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Unequaled to create an appetite, and make those who are

Boys In Bull Ring

A Contest In Mexico In Which Youths Fought
Fierce Animal.

They Went at the Enraged Brute
So Boldly That He Was Vanquished—An Exciting Spectacle.

"With every cross-town street filled with budding football players, we are inclined to think the American boy is more careless of life and limb than the youth of any other country," declared Alex Scott of Butte, Mont., as he looked on at a football game, says the New York Press. "I thought so.

HE WOULD CHARGE AT THE NEAREST BOY, too, until my last trip to Mexico. After that I was almost willing to confess that our youngsters are a very tame lot compared with their olive-skinned cousins of the southern republic.

"During the four months I spent in Mexico I saw seven bullfights, but the most novel and exciting one of the lot took place in Chihuahua, and it amply illustrates my little observation. It was my first fight, and I must admit that I really enjoyed the sensation.

"The usual six bulls were advertised to be killed, and when you advertise to kill a bull in Mexico you must do it or face a more formidable enemy in the resident alcalde, whose powers of administering punishment in such cases are likely to exceed those of the bull. You have no defense against him. In order to procure choice seats my friends and I were early on the scene. The amphitheater was soon filled.

"After the usual parade of picadors, banderilleros and matadores five lively and vicious bulls from the lower mesas were played with and slaughtered. It seemed to be a set affair, and the numbers passed off according to ring tradition and without mishap other than the killing of several gaunt horses.

"The bugle sounded again, and before its notes had died away into the ring bounded the sixth and last bull. He differed from the others in that about an inch of his horns had been sawed off, but this curtailment of his offensive weapons did not in the least seem to check his fighting instincts. After being tortured to a frenzy by banderilleros, picador and torador, the bull suddenly found himself alone in the ring. His opponents suddenly vanished. Mystified, the beast gazed around for an enemy on whom to charge, and as none was in view he shook the froth from his mouth and pawed the earth in sheer amazement.

"But he was not long in suspense. Again the bugle sounded, and in a twinkling the ring was alive with boys that scrambled pell-mell down into the arena. They ranged from twelve to fifteen years, and such agile youngsters I never saw. Unarmed except for an occasional banderilla showing here and there, these olive-skinned seedlings went after that bull with the energy of a swarm of bees attacking an intruder.

"The antics of that bewildered animal were ludicrous. He would charge at the nearest boy and 'hook' right and left as he made the lunge, but the spry youngsters dodged him every time he tried to get at them. At last the juvenile pests succeeded in encircling him completely. A look of almost human stupidity came over the face of the bull. He could not understand it. The crowd seemed to comprehend that of a moment he was puzzled, for up went a mighty chorus of gleeful laughter.

"The bull looked around the circle and saw not the slightest avenue of escape. Perhaps he meant to clear the barrier at a bound, but all he did was to leap into the air and give a heart-breaking bellow. This proved his undoing. Before he touched the ground again one boy in the rear grabbed his tail and hung on. Another and still another quickly followed suit, and soon more than a dozen youngsters were clinging to the tail of the bull, the tip of his sawed-off horns. A minute more and they had him down. Then there was a commotion indeed. Not even the sawed-off horns were visible then.

"Our interpreter explained the scramble. There was a silver plate on the forehead of the bull, tied on with rawhide thongs. It was valued at $75, and it was to become the property of the boy who got it. The little rascals in their scuffle for the booty forgot about the bull and began to fight among themselves. A football scrimmage was tame in comparison.

"Again came a bugle blast from el presidente. This time two white helmeted, blue-coated policemen responded by jumping into the ring for the purpose of scattering the combatants and preserving the peace. With the free use of their cudgels they stopped the melee, and in an instant the bull was on his feet. He charged the nearest boy, but the little rascal dodged behind one of the policemen. The 'copper' got the full force of the charge. He went down, but not 'out,' for, true to his instincts, his club was still working as the bull went over him. His brother officer had nearly extricated himself from the boys with the intention of going to his comrade's aid. Both were shouting for help.

"Meantime the bull had changed his position, flanking policeman No. 2, who was still in a stooping posture. With a bellow the bull came on, head lowered, caught the policeman full on the center and boosted him half the length of the ring. The impact was something awful and entirely too much for the nerves of his fellow officer. The latter had regained his feet, but he dropped his club, and before No. 2 had descended to earth he had sprinted forty feet and scrambled without assistance over the wall of the bull ring, which was at least nine feet in height.

"I then saw that the policeman in Mexico gets no more sympathy than his compeers on the Bowery. The mob jeered unmercifully, and I think I was about their only sympathizer.

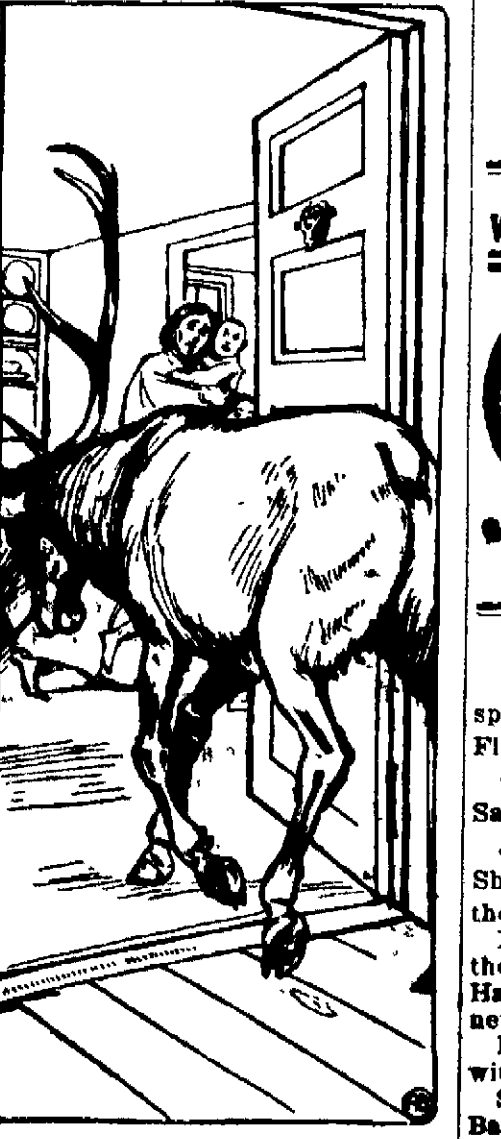

"How about that plate on the bull's forehead? Oh, it was disposed of in a Mexican. In order to save the bull ring from utter destruction the crowd was cleared out by soldiers, and el presidente del Plaza del Toros did not overlook the plate. Such neglect would have been good cause for removal from office in the land of the cactus."

DEER INVADERS A FARMHOUSE.

Forces Way Into Kitchen,
Smashes Furniture and Scars Family.

A story of the ferocious antics of a full grown deer reached this city the other night from Pleasantville, N. J., where the animal is said to have entered the kitchen of a farmer named Augustus Schwartz, says the Atlantic City correspondent of the New York Tribune. The buck came bounding toward the house, cleared the fence with a jump and landed in the back yard. Mrs. Schwartz, who had been attracted by her children's cries, opened the door. The mother and children retreated into an adjoining room, forgetting in their fright to shut the kitchen door.

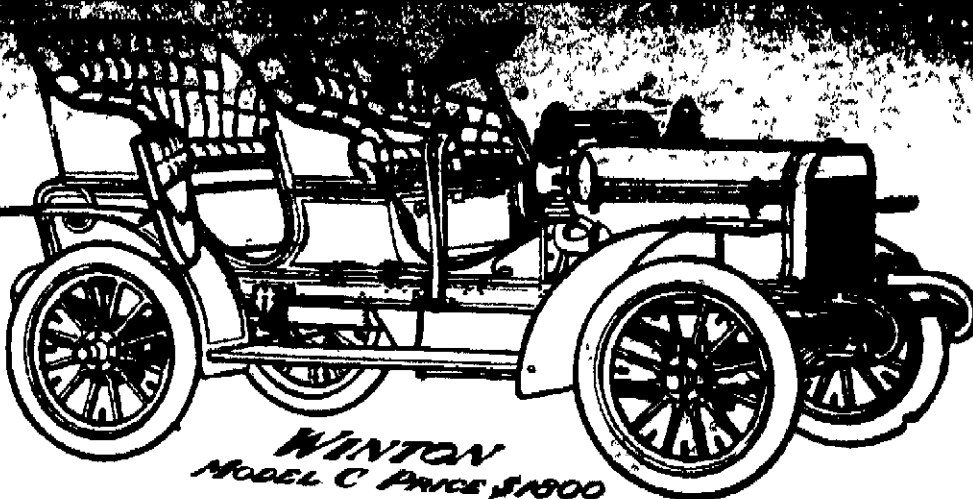

With a bellow of rage the buck entered the kitchen and proceeded to wreck the place. Its antlers became entangled in pots and pans on a shelf, sending them to the floor. Several jars of preserves Mrs. Schwartz had made for the winter were knocked from a table and smashed. The deer butted its head against the door of the room in which the woman and her children had taken refuge. It was frightened away by the barking of a dog in the adjoining barn. It ran with all speed from the yard, again clearing the fence easily.

TERED THE KITCHEN.

A short distance from the house two dogs belonging to a neighbor attacked the buck. It turned on them, ripping one of them open with its antlers and wounding the other. Men went in pursuit of the deer, but it got safely away.

WHAT THEY SAY

I bought an Olds Runabout of Mr. Forbes in July of this year. Have used it nearly every day since, running it anywhere from ten miles to ninety miles a day, and it has not cost me one penny for repairs.

GEORGE L. CATON.

The Oldsmobile Runabout I bought from Mr. Forbes, early in the summer, has given the best of satisfaction. It is very speedy, reliable and most satisfactory. While I used it a great deal for pleasure I found it almost indispensable in my business as a contractor.

ROSS KIRK.

I bought recently of Mr. Forbes, an Olds Touring Runabout which carries two people. It is simply a marvel in speed, hill climbing abilities, comfort and ease in handling. Could I not get another just like it I would not take a thousand dollars for the little car.

DR. L. C. McCURDY.

Early in 1904 I bought of Mr. Forbes an Olds Touring car which is intended to carry four or five people. I have run this car 3600 miles, and I think it is running today better than when it came from the factory. In a recent trip of 140 miles with five people, she averaged 15 miles an hour over roads good, bad and indifferent. For the price I cannot say too much in favor of this make of car.

DR. F. M. MARSHALL.

I own one of the Olds Touring cars sold by Mr. Forbes. In its class I do not know of a car that will excel it.

M. J. ADAMS.

I purchased of Mr. Forbes a Winton Touring car which I have driven about 150 miles without any expense whatever for repairs and I am more than pleased with the machine.

T. H. WHEELER.

I have been using all summer an Olds Runabout purchased from Mr. Forbes. It has done all and more than claimed for it and notwithstanding its use I consider it as good as new.

CHARLES HEIMAN.

BAR-BEN RESTORES VIGOR

NERVE FOOD
Bar-Ben is the only reliable cure, sure and lasting, for nervous exhaustion, lost vitality, insomnia, trouble some dreams, impotency and dangerous cases of neurasthenia, overwork, worry or hard study.
Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified as that of all plump, healthy and strong men. The nerves become strong and steady as steel; the eyes become bright and the face full and clear, while the moral, physical and vital systems are invigorated and every organ of the body becomes normal and healthy.
A. C. Bonier, 126 Lake St., Chicago, says:
"Before I used Bar-Ben I was pale, thin, weak and feeble; no appetite for food, no ambition and could not get on my feet. After taking one bottle I felt like a new man; my appetite is good; sleep well at night and wake in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. I heartily recommend Bar-Ben to all suffering from nervousness, impotency, loss of vitality, etc."

The Champion Wrestler Has a Scheme to Defeat the Unbeaten Heavyweight.

Frank Gotch, the champion American heavyweight wrestler, is on the war path. He sighs for blood, for new worlds to conquer. He finds wrestling too monotonous and now seeks to enter the ring against either Jeffries or Bob Fitzsimmons.

Gotch is very much in earnest in his announced determination to fight James J. Jeffries for the pugilistic championship and says he expects the battle to come off within the next twelve months.

"Perhaps some people will grin and snicker," says Gotch, "but when Frank

FRANK GOTCH, SHOWING HIS MUSCULAR CHEST.

Gotch starts out to do a thing he usually succeeds. This time I may be stopped, but I will have the satisfaction of making the try. That's all any man can do, and I want you to know that I mean to do all I have said. It will be one honest effort, with a single goal—victory.

"Now, I'll tell you what I am going to do. Let others be the judge for the present; but, regardless of the verdict, I'll keep right on going. Now that I am champion at catch-as-catch-can I don't propose for a single moment to throw away my title, because I might have further use for it after I have tempted fate in the prize ring.

"Here is my plan: I am going to Humboldt, Ia., adjust some of my property there, get my ranches in shape and then start for California. My folks are going with me. I will go to Kid McCoy and make him a proposition to train me, a proposition that he can't refuse very well. It won't be any Jack Munroe speculation in my case. I will pay McCoy or Tommy Ryan, for that matter, for every bit of work done. They won't have to take any chances. I do all that. It's business. Why not?"

"I know that if I can get McCoy or Ryan to go ahead and teach me some of the fine points I can give Jeffries a battle. I'll wager good American money on that proposition.

"I realize that I could scarcely expect a fight offhand with Jeffries, and, frankly, I do not. In the first place, I wouldn't take a fight now if Jeffries really came to me and offered me everything. But on the coast they think pretty well of Jack Johnson's chances with Jeffries, don't they? Well, there's my cue. I'll fight Johnson under the conditions that if I win and Jeffries and the public think I'm a worthy opponent that I get a match with the champion. That's fair, isn't it? I'll go them one better—I'll fight this fellow Johnson, and all I want if beaten is my training expenses, and I won't bother Jeffries. They can get some of my money on the side too. A fight with Johnson would show what I could do."

DALY GOING TO IRELAND.

Running Champion to Defend His Title Abroad in Spring.

John J. Daly, the new five mile running champion of America, is to go to

JOHN J. DALY, FIVE MILE RUNNING CHAMPION.

England in the spring to compete against the best men of the "old world." He is also the champion middle distance runner of Ireland, and his championship there it is about time for him to go back to defend his title.

"Master of Hawthorne" Will Put Tod In Saddle to Spite Turf Opponents.

Edward Corrigan has decided not only to fly in the face of the western turf congress, but he will ignore the Eastern Jockey club and the governing bodies of all the foreign tracks.

The "master of Hawthorne" has signed Tod Sloane to ride for him this coming season, and the little jockey who is under the ban of all the race tracks in the world of any standing will once more be seen in the saddle.

Sloane no doubt feels confident that Corrigan will win out in the fight he will make on the Western Jockey club. Tod has had many offers to ride on outlaw tracks, but has steadily refused to do so, hoping that by being good he would stand a better chance of reinstatement.

Some months ago he declared that Harry Payne Whitney would work for his reinstatement, but nothing ever came of that.

This is the first open act of warfare that Corrigan has made. Sloane has been refused a license by the Western Jockey club, and in signing him Corrigan declared that the boy would ride this summer.

Just what terms have entered into the contract have not been revealed. It is safe to say, however, that the amount is something less than Sloane was earning when he met with difficulties in Europe.

"The understanding with Sloane was entered into several weeks ago, before he went to California," says Mr. Corrigan. "He is to ride for me during the 1905 season, and I understand that he can do 103 or 105 pounds. I haven't talked to him myself, and what I know has been told me by Tommy McGree, who has been acting for me in the matter."

Sloane is unwilling to discuss the deal and returns only evasive answers to questions concerning it. "If Mr. Corrigan said that I am to ride for him, I suppose he is right," he said. "I will be in Chicago for awhile and may have something to give out regarding my plans meanwhile. I may buy some horses too. In fact, I am not at all sure that I know what I am going to do."

Sloane is undoubtedly the greatest jockey of recent years. When ruled off by the English Jockey club he was earning $75,000 a year. Not a bad income for a lad weighing ninety pounds! He revolutionized the methods of American and English horse pilots. The "Sloane seat" will always be famous.

As Sloane is out of favor with both the English and American Jockey clubs

SLOANE IN THE SADDLE.

Corrigan will but add new fuel to the flames of opposition that have been burning for years by putting Tod back in the saddle. But Corrigan is a vigorous fighter, as his opponents well know, and he may follow even more sensational methods before the winter pauses.

Westerners in Eastern Games.

The first of the announcements regarding the annual relay meet of the University of Pennsylvania on April 22 is to the effect that the west will again be represented in the contests. Ward has been received that the University of Wisconsin will be on hand with a relay team for the two mile championship. The universities of Ohio and Michigan are likely to follow.

Wheel Works Destroyed.

Sandusky, O., Jan. 24.—The wheel company's works, and a half acre of ground, burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000, with insurance less than $50,000. This is the last of several large works formerly in Sandusky, O., which have been destroyed by fire. The Wooley Wheel company will rebuild.

Buckeye Police Chiefs.

Toledo, O., Jan. 24.—The annual election of the Ohio police chiefs was held today. The election of the following officers: President, John C. Whitaker of Dayton; first vice president, R. H. President Grillo Defeated.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—After a heated contest J. E. Grillo was ousted from the presidency of the American association and was succeeded by William D. O'Brien of Milwaukee. The election was one of the most stormy events in the history of the American association. Grillo was determined to hold his position in spite of the opposition against him, and fought a hard battle to retain the presidency. O'Brien was Grillo's most formidable opponent, having four of the five necessary clubs behind him from the start.

Frame Houses Consumed.

New York, Jan. 26.—Fire destroyed nine frame houses in Canwell avenue, the Bronx, and threatened more than 50 in the immediate neighborhood before the firemen succeeded in getting the flames under control. Hundreds of men, women and children were hurried out of their beds in the scantiest of clothing. So far as can be learned no one was seriously injured.

ON THE ANXIOUS SEAT

Will This City Be Represented on The Diamond This Year?

THE TIME IS RIPE FOR ACTION

Gentle spring is bashfully casting her amorous glances but as yet is at Coshocton's threshold but a few weeks more and she will be. Consequently those who are fond of baseball are beginning to wonder whether Coshocton is to be represented on the diamond during the coming season. The time is ripe for some one to take hold and prance out a team that will show the world that Coshocton is not asleep when it comes to sports. There is much good material for a team right here in the city and it is understood that Bill Robertson, who played with Wheeling in the Central League and Piqua last season, could be induced to stay at home if the right kind of encouragement were given him although he has numerous offers from other teams. Coshocton fans are earnestly hoping that steps will soon be taken to revive the old time enthusiasm and it is confidently believed that there are more people than ever before in Coshocton who would back up a good ball team.

TONIGHT'S CONCERT IS QUITE THE MUSICAL EVENT OF YEAR

Quite the event of the season musically is the appearance tonight at the Methodist auditorium of George Crampton, the British basso-cantante, and his concert company—one of the numbers of the People's Lecture course. Mr. Crampton sings in superb style and his voice is one of rare excellence. He sings with a manner most pleasing and last year made many warm admirers in Coshocton. The pianist and accompanist is Mrs. Blanch Sage-Halcomb, who is an accomplished artist on the piano forte, having few women equals in the country. The contralto is Madame Alice Myron and the cellist Ugo Gossweiler, a talented young Austrian. The prospects are that the visit of the company here tonight will be in the form of an ovation. The program begins at 8 o'clock.

Massachusetts several schooners were reported ashore, but as the gale gave warning of its coming, harbors were hastily found and there were many stormbound fleets lying at anchor in perfect safety. Cape Cod caught the force of the storm in its greatest intensity, the wind there reaching a velocity of 72 miles an hour. Along the Jersey coast the lifesavers found it almost impossible to make their patrols. The observers on the coast had little to report except a terrific gale and blinding snow.

West and South Suffer.

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Practically every town in the Mississippi valley and the lake region had its weather troubles. In some places it was extremely cold. In this city snow and a gale from the north made streetcar traffic difficult. The wind at times drove the snow in dense clouds, blinding teamsters and grime so that collisions in the streets were frequent. In Kansas and western Missouri the weather was the coldest recorded in the last five years. The thermometers in Kansas City were 11 below zero. All through the Ohio valley the weather was the coldest of the winter, ranging from 8 to 12 below. In the majority of cases the cold was accompanied by a high wind and driving snow that interfered sadly with railroad traffic. Reports from the south say that the most severe weather of the winter is prevailing all through that section of the country.

AGAINST JUDGE GOODNOW.

Serious Charges in a Resolution Introduced in the House.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Representative Hughes (N. J.) introduced a resolution in the house directing the committee on the judiciary "to inquire and report whether the action of this house is requisite concerning the official misconduct of John Goodnow, judge of the United States consular court at Shanghai, China, and say whether the administration of his office has resulted in injury and wrongs to litigants in his court." The resolution is accompanied by 17 specifications. Among the charges are embezzlement, representing false claim for money against the United States, and conspiracy.

The resolution further charges that said Judge Goodnow is incompetent to hold the office of federal judge, that he has never been admitted to practice law before any court in the United States or elsewhere, and that he is not a lawyer. A protest against the retention of Judge Goodnow, signed by 20 American residents of China, is made a part of the resolution.

DESPERATE ENGAGEMENT RAGES;

CZAR'S ARMY ATTACKS LEFT WING OF JAPS

General Kuroki Reports Heaviest Fighting Since October.

Japan Makes Extensive Preparations To Continue War Indefinitely.

Secretary Hays Suggestion In Reference to Chinese Neutrality Has Elicited No Response.

(By Cable to The Age.)

Tokyo, Jan. 27.—Japan is making enormous war preparations. Besides immediately laying down a battleship of 19,000 tons at Yokosuka and the contemplated building in Japan of a 12,000-ton cruiser, large additions to her torpedo and submarine flotillas and two cruisers have already been started building at Kure. All future ships will be heavily armed.

A dispatch from General Kuroki's headquarters in Manchuria says: A heavy and continuous roar has been heard to the westward all day, and apparently the largest engagement since October is being fought. Reports received here are to the effect that a Russian force has crossed the Hun river on the Japanese left wing. A Japanese force advanced against the Russians, making an attack.

The fighting must be attended with great suffering from the cold. A snowstorm began Monday, following a long period of remarkable mildness. The temperature is below zero and the plains are covered with several inches of snow. The ground is too hard for rapid trenching. The present move by the Russians is the first important one since General Mischenko's recent raid.

WILL IMPROVE OHIO HARBORS

House Committee Agrees on Bill Carrying Large Appropriation.

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Washington, Jan. 27.—The house committee on rivers and harbors has agreed on a bill providing for river and harbor work. The bill carries an aggregate appropriation of $17,091,875, and authorizes expenditures for continuing contracts aggregating $16,734,657. The following shows the sums appropriated for places in Ohio: Sandusky, $135,000, and for continuing contracts $400,000; Huron, $45,000, and for continuing contracts $200,000; Black river, Lorain harbor, $85,000; Cleveland, $200,000; Fairport, $135,000; Conneaut, $60,000; Muskingum river, lock and dam No. 11 (conditional), $110,000. Ohio river: General improvement, $300,000; locks and dams Nos. 2 and 6 inclusive, in Pennsylvania, $500,000, and for continuing contracts $1,281,375; dams Nos. 8 and 11 in Ohio and West Virginia, $160,000, and for continuing contracts $160,000.

During discussion of the provision in the army bill regulating the pay of retired officers assigned to active service Mr. Lodge read the following telegram from Governor Herrick of Ohio: "Ohio deeply interested in army appropriation bill. It is desired to humiliate General Miles, in which we have no sympathy here. It should not include splendid army officers on the retired list who are rendering splendid service to National Guard in different states. We are especially interested in Ohio and deeply interested."

BACKBONE OF STRIKE BROKEN

NEW-YORK FIREMEN HAVE LONG BATTLE

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

New York, Jan. 27.—Fire which started in wooden buildings in South street, near the East river water front, gave the firemen a desperate two-hour battle and threatened to destroy a large amount of property. Among the buildings which for a time were in great danger was an immense bonded warehouse in which many hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property was stored. The warehouse was saved, however, and the flames were finally subdued after four buildings had been badly damaged, resulting in a loss of $100,000.

GLAD NEWS COMES FROM WASHINGTON

SPANISH MINISTERS RESIGN IN BODY

(By Cable to The Age.)

Madrid, Jan. 27.—The ministry has resigned, and King Alfonso has entrusted the Marquis Villaverde to form a new cabinet. Villaverde refused to give the late Premier Azcarra any assistance in the formation of the latter's cabinet, which, after about six weeks in office, has now resigned. General Azcarra had not been able to obtain the support requisite for a continuance in office, so the resignation of his cabinet had been anticipated.

STANDARD DIRECTOR DIES IN PITTSBURG

(By Telegraph to The Age.)

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 27.—Charles Lockhart, a director of the Standard Oil company and at one time president of the corporation, died at his residence on North Highland avenue after an illness of several months, due to the infirmities of old age. His wealth is estimated at from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000.

TREPOFF NO LONGER FEARS REVOLUTION

Many Men Return to Work And St. Petersburg Factories Resume.

Rioting And Bloodshed, However, Continue in Smaller Towns.

Minister of Interior Promises Leniency to Prominent Authors Now Confined in Fortresses.

(By Cable to The Age.)
Warsaw, Russia, Jan. 27.—The strike started here today and is spreading rapidly. A number of factories have been closed. The work men are quiet.

Mitva, Russia, Jan. 27.—Labor agents from Riga organized a strike here today. Troops have been summoned.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 27.—With troops patrolling the streets in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Libau, Odessa, Kieff and other industrial centers of Russia, there have been no serious collisions with strikers at these points, but a clash occurred at Riga, where 30 workmen were killed or wounded and a substitute chief of police and two soldiers were mortally wounded. The encounter occurred near the Tukum railroad station. The strikers attacked the troops and attempted to disarm them, when the order was given to fire.

In Moscow some of the employers are evincing a willingness to make some concessions to their workmen, but there has been no general agreement on that point. In St. Petersburg the return of workmen has enabled several factories to resume operations, and the authorities hope to witness a general resumption soon. The minister of the interior has promised to consider the cases of the prominent writers who were sent to the St. Peter and St. Paul fortress for their activity in the political and economic agitation, and he has given a qualified promise that they shall be released.

The Russian capital presents almost a normal appearance, and the authorities are confident that the backbone of the strike has been broken. Some factories and mills already have resumed, and a general resumption of operations is expected on Monday. The authorities expect that the failure of the strike here will have a discouraging effect upon the workmen in other cities to which the troubles have been spreading, and believe that there is no longer danger of a complete suspension of all the industrial concerns of Russia.

Governor General Trepoft, in an interview, said: "The vast majority of the workmen were deceived into associating themselves with a political movement. The government intends to do everything possible under the law."

Edward C. Compton, Notary Public.

The Age's special census of Roscoe has been completed and the number is 661. The report of the enumerator, Mr. J. D. Severns, appears above.

The prize guesser on this enumeration is Mrs. Marie Cooper, wife of Joe Cooper, 218 Burt avenue, Coshocton. Mrs. Cooper guessed the exact number 661, and the same was received at The Age office January 26, at 7:35 a. m. Two other persons guessed the exact number—Daniel Elinning, Roscoe, filed January 26 at 8:58 a. m., and R. C. Bantam, Warsaw, filed January 26 at 4 p. m.

Other guesses that were close are those of Elmer Stover, 660; W. A. Bumgardner, 662, and Beattie Snoots, 662.

It will be seen that the guess of Mrs. Cooper takes precedence over

"If the money reward and humane treatment that the teacher receives are often shamefully little there are rewards that cause the heart to leap when the years come in which some pupil rises up and calls his teacher blessed," and that teacher may well be proud, if by some act or word he has helped some pupil find his calling.

"I do not know how much the fact that Mr. Howard Chandler Christy was once my pupil has had to do with his success but I feel quite certain that it was a means of encouragement, at least.

TEAM RAN AWAY ON MAIN STREET

There Was More Excitement Than Damage Resulted.

A team of horses owned by Adam Stockum, who lives east of Coshocton, became frightened at a train on Main street Friday morning while Mr. Stockum was in the Star clothing store. The horses whirled and dashed down Main street.

A little boy was in the wagon but he hastily jumped out the back end of the wagon, which was empty, and let the horses go. They were going at a good rate of speed when someone rushed out to stop them.

They tried to turn out south Fourth street but the wagon upset and one of the horses fell the whole outfit landing in a confused heap almost at the door of the Coshocton National bank. Men rushed to the scene and the horses and wagon were soon righted. The runaway therefore caused more excitement than damage.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE sudden and tragic death of Constance's foster father, which occurred virtually as narrated by Straws, set a seal of profound sadness on the heart of the young girl. "Good sir, adieu!" she had said in the nursery scene, and the eternal parting had shortly followed. Her affection for the old manager had been that of a loving daughter. The grief she should have experienced over the passing of the marquis was transferred to the memory of one who had been a father through love's kinship. In the faraway past, standing at the bier of her mother, the manager it was who had held her childish hand, consoling her and sharing her affliction, and in those distant but forgotten days of trouble the young girl and the homeless old man became all in all to each other.

Years had rolled by. The child that prattled by his side became the stately girl, but the hand clasp at that grave had never been relinquished. She could not pretend to mourn the death of the marquis, her own father. Had he not ever been dead to her—as dead as the good wife (or bad wife) of that nobleman—as dead as Gross George and all the other honored and dishonored figures of that misty past? But Barnes' death was the abrupt severing of ties strengthened by years of tender association, and when his last summons came she felt herself truly alone.

In an old cemetery, amid the crumbling bricks, Barnes was buried, his sealed tomb above ground bearing in its inscription the answer to the duke's query, "Thy Best of Life Is Sleep."

Constance remained in New Orleans. There the old manager had found his final resting place, and she had no definite desire to go elsewhere. Adrift in the darkness of the present, the young girl was too perplexed to plan for the future, so she remained in the house Barnes had rented shortly before his death. An elderly gentlewoman of fallen fortunes, to whom this semirural establishment belonged, Constance remained as a companion, passing her time quietly, soberly, almost in solitude. This mansion, last remnant of its owner's earthly estate, was roomy and spacious, nestling among the oranges and inviting seclusion, with its pretentious wall surrounding the grounds.

The old fashioned gentlewoman, poor and proud, was a fitting figure in that ancient house, where in former days gay parties had assembled. But now the principal callers at the old house were the little fat priest, with a rosy smile, who looked after the aged lady's soul, of which she was most solicitous in these later days, and the Count de Propriac, who came ostensibly to see the elderly woman and chat about genealogy and extraction, but was obviously not unmindful of the presence of the young girl nor averse to seeking to mitigate her sorrow. Culver, the lawyer, too, came occasionally to talk about her affairs, but often her mind turned impatiently from figures and markets to the subtle rhythm of Shakespeare. She regretted having left the stage, feeling the loneliness of this simple existence, yet averse to seeking diversion and shunning rather than inviting society. As the inert hours crept by she longed for the forced wakefulness and stir of other days—happy days of insecurity, fleeting, joyous days, gone now beyond recall!

But while she was striving to solve these new problems of her life they were all being settled for her by fate, that arrogant meddler. Calling one morning, Culver, nosegay in hand, was obliged to wait longer than usual and employed the interval in casually examining his surroundings and incidentally himself. First, with the vanity of youthful old gentlemen, he gazed into a tall mirror framed in the fantastic style of the early Venetians, a glass which had belonged to the marquis and had erstwhile reflected the light beauty of his noble spouse. Pausing about as long as it would have taken a lady to adjust a curl, he peeped into a Dutch cabinet of ebony and mother of pearl and was studying a charming creature painted on ivory, whose head, like that of Bluebeard's wife, was subsequently separated from her lovely shoulders, when a light footstep behind him interrupted his scrutiny. Turning, he greeted the young girl and with stately gallantry presented the nosegay.

"How well you are looking!" he said. "Though there might be a little more color perhaps, like some of these flowers. If I were a doctor I should prescribe less cloister, more city!"

She took the flowers, meeting his kindly gaze with a faint smile.

"Most patients would like such prescriptions," he went on. "I should soon become a popular society physician."

But, although he spoke lightly, his manner was partly forced, and he regarded her furtively. Their brief acquaintance had awakened in him an intense but general half interest. We curiosity was no harsher than that of a gardener studying some new variety of bud or blossom. Therefore he hesitated in what he was about to say, shifting in his chair uneasily when they were seated, but finally coming to the point with:

"Have you read the account of the engagement between the Mexican and the American forces at Vera Cruz?"

"No, not yet," she admitted.

"Nor the list of—of casualties?" he continued hesitatingly.

"The casualties!" she repeated. "Why?"

"Saint-Prosper has no further interest in the marquis' sons," he said quickly.

She gazed straight before her, calm and composed. This absence of any exhibition of feeling reassured the attorney.

"He is—dead?" she asked quietly.

"Yes."

"How did he die?"

"Gallantly," replied the caller, now convinced she had no interest in the matter save that of a mere acquaintance. "His death is described in half a column. You see he did not live in vain."

"Was he killed in battle?"

"In a skirmish. His company was sent to break up a band of guerrilla rancheros at Antigua. They ambushed him; he drove them out of the thicket, but fell—you have dropped your flowers; allow me—at the head of his men."

"At the head of his men!" She drew in her breath.

"There passed the last of an ill fated line," said the lawyer reflectively. "Poor fellow! He started with such bright prospects, graduating from the military college with unusual honors. Ambitious, light hearted, he went to Africa to carve out a name in the army. The same ship that took him out carried back, to the marquis, the story of his brother's disgrace!"

"His brother's disgrace!" she exclaimed.

Culver nodded. "He sold a French stronghold in Africa, Miss Carew."

Had the attorney been closely observing her he would have noticed the sudden look of bewilderment that crossed her face. She stared at him with her soul in her eyes.

"Ernest Saint-Prosper's brother?"

The turmoil of her thoughts held her as by a spell. In the disruption of a fixed conclusion her brain was filled with new and poignant reflections. Unconsciously she placed a nervous hand upon his arm.

"Then Ernest Saint-Prosper who was—killed in Mexico was not the traitor?"

"Certainly not!" exclaimed Culver quickly. "Owing to the disgrace, I am sure, more than to any other reason, he bade farewell to his country—and now lies unimpaired in some mountain ravine. It is true the marquis quarreled with him, disliking not a little the young man's republican ideas—but my dear young lady, you are ill!"

"No, not!" she returned hastily, striving to maintain her self possession. "How—do you know this?"

"Through the marquis himself," he replied, somewhat uneasy beneath her steady gaze. "He told me the story in order to protect the estate from any possible pretensions on the part of the traitor. The renegade was reported dead, but the marquis nevertheless remained skeptical. He did not believe in the old saw about the devil being dead. 'Le diable lives always,' he said."

The visitor observed a perceptible change in the young girl, just what he could not define, but to him it seemed most to lie in her eyes, where something that baffled him looked out and met his glance.

"His brother was an officer in the French army?" she asked, as though forcing herself to speak.

"Yes; ten years older than Ernest Saint-Prosper, he had already made a career for himself. How eagerly, then, must the younger brother have looked forward to meeting him; to serving with one who, in his young eyes, was all that was brave and noble! What a bitter awakening from the dream! It is not those we hate who can injure us most; only those we love can stab us so deeply!"

Mechanically she answered the lawyer, and, when he prepared to leave, the hand given him at parting was as cold as ice.

"Remember," he said admonishingly, "less cloister, more city!"

Some hours later the old lady, dressed in her heavy silk and brocade and with snow white hair done up in imposing fashion, rapped on Constance's door, but received no answer. Knocking again, with like result, she entered the room, discovering the young girl on the bed, her cheeks tinted like the rose, her eyes with no gleam of recognition in them and her lips moving, uttering snatches of old plays. Taking her hand, the old lady found it hot and

CHAPTER XXXII.

ADJUTANT, tell Colonel Saint-Prosper I wish to see him."

The adjutant saluted and turned on his heel, while General Scott bent over the papers before him, studying a number of rough pencil tracings. Absorbed in his task, the light of two candles on the table brought into relief, against the dark shadows, a face of rugged character and marked determination. Save for a slight contraction of the brow he gave no evidence of the mental concentration he bestowed upon the matter in hand, which was to lead to the culmination of the struggle and to vindicate the wisdom and boldness of his policy.

"You sent for me, general?"

An erect, martial figure stood respectfully at the entrance of the tent.

"Yes," said the general, pushing the papers from him. "I have been studying your drawings of the defensive works at San Antonio Garita and find them entirely comprehensive. A council of officers has been called, and perhaps it will be as well for you to remain."

"At what time shall I be here, general?"

"It is about time now," answered the commander in chief, consulting his watch. "You have quite recovered from your wounds?" he added kindly.

"Yes, thank you, general."

"I see by the newspapers you were reported dead. If your friends read that it will cause them needless anxiety. You had better see that the matter is corrected."

"It is hardly worth while," returned the young man slowly.

The commanding general glanced at him in some surprise. "A strange fellow!" he thought. "Has he reasons for wishing to be considered dead? However, that is none of my business. At any rate, he is a good soldier." And after a moment he continued: "Cerro Gordo was warm work, but there is warmer yet in store for us. Only Providence, not the Mexicans, can stop us. But here are the officers," as General Pillow, Brevet General Twiggs and a number of other officers entered.

The commander in chief proceeded to give such information as he had touching the approaches to the city. Many of the officers favored operating against San Antonio Garita, others attacking Chapultepec. Saint-Prosper when called on stated that the ground before the San Antonio gate was intersected by many irrigating ditches and that much of the approach was under water.

"Then you would prefer storming a fortress to taking a ditch?" said one of the generals satirically.

"A series of ditches," replied the other.

"Colonel Saint-Prosper is right," exclaimed the commanding general. "I had already made up my mind. Let it be the western gate then."

And thus was brought to a close one of the most memorable councils of war, for it determined the fate of the City of Mexico.

Saint-Prosper looked older than when seen in New Orleans, as though he had endured much in that brief but hard campaign. His wound had incapacitated him for only a few months, and in spite of the climate and a woeful lack of medical attendance and nourishing supplies his hardy constitution stood him in such stead he was on his feet and in the saddle, while his comrades languished and died in the fierce heat of the temporary hospitals. fellow officers knew him as a fearless soldier, but a man reticent about himself, who made a confidant of no one.
Liked for his ready, broad military qualities, it was a matter of common knowledge, that no one knew anything about him except that he had served in the French army and was highly esteemed by General Scott as a daring and proficient engineer.

After leaving the commanding general's tent Saint-Prosper retired to rest in that wilderness which had once been a monarch's pleasure grounds.

When daybreak again penetrated the mountain recesses and fell upon the valley he arose to shake off a troubled slumber. An unhealthy mist hung over the earth, like a miasma, and the officer shivered as he walked in that depressing and noxious atmosphere to a little adobe house which the natives had built near the trail that led through the valley. As he approached this but he encountered a dismal but loquacious sentinel tramping before the partly opened door.

"This is chilly work, guard?" said
the young man, pausing.

"Yis, colonel," replied the soldier, apparently grateful for the interruption;
"It's a hot foglet I prefer to this cool dooty."

"Whom are you guarding?" continued the officer.

"A spy, taken in the lines a few days ago. He's to be executed this morning at 6. But I don't think he will mould that, for it's out of his head he is with the malaria."

"He should have had medical attendance," observed the officer, stepping to the door.

"Faith, they'll cure him at daybreak," replied the guard. "It's a medicine that never fails."

AS TO HOLD UPS.

The silly prattle that has been going on about hold-ups in Coshocton is disgusting as well as provoking to every patriotic citizen. The idea is the outer world that the traveling public is afraid to get off at Coshocton. It is an injustice to this town.

Coshocton's police force is to be congratulated upon the really remarkable capture of the two thugs figured in the only genuine hold-up. Coshocton has had for many a year the insinuations that the outer world is buzzing about that event rolling it in its check as as they are contemptible. Such occurrences at times in every big city and this kind of talk is making a mountain out of a hill.

There is no better town to live in Coshocton, in Ohio—and no one. The Age is for Coshocton last and all the time.

ANOTHER KNAPP.

Conscience has brought forth a doleful tale of the class of Ohio's strangest knapp. Instead of murdering five men he murdered but one. No, technically, he is not a murderer but the man who would not convict him for the murder of Florence Groves, had a daughter.

Man Milligan and the young woman became infatuated with each other and eloped. He has been arrested and calmly tells how he did it if she wedded the man to whom she was engaged he would himself, and then how after living a man and wife in Chicago they came to a compact to die. He calmly told how he sat and watched the girl take acid, iodine and wood alcohol and finally carbolic acid. He watched her convulsions and death—then and then decided he did not have nerve enough to do it himself.

The girl was foolish, romantic and married. Her sins can be forgiven. Her life is on his head. He is guilty of her death as though he plunged a knife into her heart. There are too much such nauseating tales these days masquerading in the name of romance. It is food for worms for the home as well as the ten-thousand-dollar radium which a Gothamite was reported to be awarded must have been kind lately announced as real in the sun.

It is quite certain that the world never knew the precise number of men killed at St. Petersburg. Mrs. J. F. Albertson is ill with influenza at her home on Main street. Lester Page is on the sick list.

A woman in Brooklyn sued for divorce on the ground that her husband kept snakes for pets. She properly lost her suit. She should have been sufficiently grateful that her husband simply looked on snakes as pets—he might have seen them otherwise.

A mouse in a Massachusetts city short-circuited the electric lighting local plant and plunged the whole place into darkness for several hours. This shows how in modern enterprise the biggest things hinge on the smallest accidents, so nicely are the utilized forces of nature poised.

Short is the favor even of notoriety. As Mrs. Chadwick in her cell steps out of the limelight Mrs. Duke steps into the glare. And by the way, the masculine element is gallantly conceding in the right to that position the claim of "ladies first."

The public will be very glad there is to be no railroad strike; but then, the public wouldn't have been asked anything about it except, of course, to pay the price.

Was it a premonition of current events which led the Russian Emperor to announce, sometime ago, that no more balls would be held in St. Petersburg this winter?

All the missionary work is not needed solely in darkest Africa or in yellowish China. A man in New York was lately held up and robbed in the building of a tract society.

There should be an investigation of the discrimination shown by the sun in having its eclipse visible to Spain and not to us. We are much bigger, and whipped Spain into the bargain.

It is wonderful what a day may bring forth, not only in events, but also in change of sentiments. Who in Russia cares now for the fall of Port Arthur with the imperial from tottering on its base?

The Chicago police have unearthed a man with 12 living wives, who was renting five flats on the matrimonial plan when arrested. Chicago sold more precedents in conjugal doings than any other city in the world.

It is said that a number of Chinese are drilling in this country in order that they may return to teach their own countrymen. The rule abroad now seems to be, "When in doubt of anything, go to America and learn how to do it."

Literally, in the case of the speeding automobile, it is the pace which kills.

It would be indeed ungrateful to criticize the snow when we have had so many days of almost spring weather.

Possibly those Russians who are suffering keenest agony are the St. Petersburg editors who are not able to issue their newspapers.

The integrity of China seems to be assured, but what the Czar desires just now more than anything else is the integrity of Russia.

The Oldest Church.

The oldest Christian church in the world is at Rome. Not far from the great Church of St. Maria Maggiore, in a street bearing the same name, is the much smaller Church of St. Pudentiana, which tradition as well as the opinion of archaeological experts declares to be the most ancient of the Christian edifices of Rome.

About the middle of the first century a certain Roman senator named Pudens had a house on this spot. He was a Christian convert and, it is said, a distant relative of Paul, the apostle, who lodged with him from A. D. 41 to 50 and converted his two daughters, Praxedes and Pudentiana. For the religious uses of himself and guests he built a small chapel in this house, and when he died in 96 and his wife a year later his daughter added a baptistery, the plans for which were drawn by Pius, the then bishop of Rome. In course of time a church was erected on the site of the original house of Pudens and consecrated by the bishop in 108 or 145.

The Rented Habits of Paris.

The written law provides for every child in France that the government supplement the home education and when necessary replace it entirely, but as a matter of fact there are scores of children, in Paris especially, who have shaken free of their parents or been cast off by them and who live a vagabond existence, playing hide and seek with the officers of the law. Among this band the commonest offense is begging, though generally there is some older person back of the whining specimen one meets with on the streets. The fruitful incomes in this profession are obtained only through children. During the nights between New Year's and Christmas a baby in long clothes, especially if it be delicate looking, rents for as high as $5 or $6. His brothers and sisters from one to five years old bring $2, while those still older are worth a dollar on the coldest days.—Harper's Magazine.

What a Hand May Mean.

In all my experiences and thoughts I am conscious of a hand. Whatever touches me, whatever thrills me, is as a hand that touches me in the dark, and that touch is my reality. You might as well say that a slight which makes you glad or a blow which brings the stinging tears to your eyes is unreal as to say that those impressions are unreal which I have accumulated by means of touch. The delicate tremble of a butterfly's wings in my hand, the soft petals of violets curling in the cool folds of their leaves or lifting sweetly out of the meadow grass, the clear, firm outline of face and limb, the smooth arch of a horse's neck and the velvety touch of his nose—all these and a thousand resultant combinations, which take shape in my mind, constitute my world.—Helen Keller in Century.

Don't Like Their Own Medicine.

Dentists are, as a rule, not living testimonials to their profession. "It is because we know how much a tooth can be hurt that we dislike to get into a chair ourselves," one of the craft explained the other day. "I had to fill a tooth for a fellow dentist last week and found it simply impossible to do a good job. He twisted and turned, grabbed my hand when he saw it coming his way and absolutely refused to let me do enough cutting to hold the filling solidly. Finally I patched the tooth up somehow, and he wouldn't let me polish off the edges. Give me the most hysterical woman before a dentist every time."—New York Tribune.

Monocles in the English Army.

About a century ago a British army order was issued forbidding officers to wear eyeglasses or spectacles. But a short-sighted officer belonging to a crack cavalry regiment had no mind to resign his commission or stumble blindly, and he invented the single eyeglass. When called to account by the authorities he claimed that the monocle, being of the singular number, did not contravene the order against spectacles and glasses in the plural. Red tape accepted this literal rendering of the law, and, becoming popular in the British army, the monocle was adopted by civilian bores.

M'KINLEY SOUVENIR CERTIFICATES

Sent Here For Distribution By Postmaster McCoy.

The Age is in receipt of the following self-explanatory letter from the McKinley Memorial association:

Coshocton, Ohio.

Dear sir:—This association is undertaking to discharge its obligation to the contributors to the monument fund, which involves the presentation to each donor of a souvenir certificate showing that party's participation in the work, with as little draft on the memorial fund as possible, and the postmasters of the country are being asked to distribute the certificates from their offices. At the same time local papers are being requested to make an announcement notifying contributors that the certificates are available at the local postoffice. Relying upon the co-operation of the press (which has been very freely given) up to this time, we are asking newspapers in such towns as the plan requires to announce that the postmaster is ready to make the distribution to all contributors of record where the contribution was as much as one dollar, and we now write to ask that you make such an announcement in your paper, as we are forwarding to Postmaster McCoy a supply of certificates today. If this is not against the usages of your office, will you be good enough to give the association the benefit of your co-operation in the matter, for which you may be assured you will have the full appreciation of the trustees.

Very truly yours, F. S. Hartzell, Asst. Sec'y

FORMIDABLE GUNS.

The Bombards Used by the Turks in the Fifteenth Century.

In 1478 Mohammed II, in forming the siege of Scutari, in Albania, employed fourteen heavy bombards, the lightest of which threw a stone shot of 370 pounds weight, two sent shots of 500 pounds, one of 750 pounds, two of 850 pounds, one of 1,200 pounds, five of 1,500 and one of the enormous weight of 1,640 pounds, enormous even in these days, for our 80 ton guns throw only a 1,700 pound projectile, our 100 ton throws one of 2,000 pounds, and the 110 ton throws an 1,800 pound shot with a high velocity.

The stone shot of Mohammed's guns varied between twenty and thirty-two inches in diameter, about the height of a dining table, 2,534 of them fired on this occasion weighing, according to a calculation of General Lefroy's, about 1,000 tons, and were out of the solid rock on the spot. Assuming twenty-four inches as the average diameter of the shot fired at the siege, the total area of the surface dressed was nearly 32,000 square feet. At this siege the weight of the powder fired is estimated by General Lefroy to have been 250 tons. At the siege of Rhodes in 1480 Mohammed caused sixteen basileks or double cannon to be cast on the spot, throwing balls two to three feet in diameter.—Chambers' Journal.

WHEN A MAN STARVES.

How It Feels to Go Without Food For Seven Days.

For the first two days through which a strong and healthy man is doomed to exist upon nothing his sufferings are perhaps more acute than in the remaining stages; he feels an inordinate, unspeakable craving at the stomach night and day. The mind runs upon beef, bread and other substances, but still in a great measure the body retains its strength. On the third and fourth days, but especially on the fourth, this insistent craving gives place to a sinking and weakness of the stomach, accompanied by nausea.

On the fifth day his cheeks appear hollow and sunken, his body attenuated; his color is ashy pale and his eyes wild, glassy and cannibalistic.

The sixth day brings with it increased suffering, although the pangs of hunger are lost in an overpowering languor and sickness. The head becomes dizzy; the ghosts of well remembered banquets pass in hideous procession through the mind.

The seventh day comes, bringing increasing lassitude and further prostration of strength. The mind wanders.—Chicago Chronicle.

NEW YEAR'S BREAKFAST.

In Japan It Is a Religious Rite and a Serious Matter.

To a devout Japanese breakfast on New Year's day is a religious rite rather than a vulgar satisfaction of the appetite. No ordinary dishes are consumed at this meal. The tea must be made with water drawn from the well when the first ray of sun strikes it, a potpourri of materials specified by law forms the staple dish, while at the table a measure of special sake from a red lacquer cup must be drained by whosoever desires happiness during the coming year.

In the room is placed an "eiyasian stand," or red lacquer tray, covered with evergreen leaves and bearing a rice dumpling, a lobster, oranges, persimmons, chestnuts, dried sardines and herring roe. All these dishes have a special significance. The names of some are homonymous with words of happy omen; the others have an allegorical meaning. The lobster's curved back and long claws typify life prolonged till the frame is bent and the beard is long; the sardines, which always swim in pairs, express conjugal bliss; the herring is symbolical of a fruitful progeny.

These dishes are not intended for consumption, although in most cases the appetite is fairly keen. The orthodox Japanese not only sees the old year out; he rises at 4 to welcome the newcomer and performs many ceremonies before he breaks his fast.—London Chronicle.

LAWS ON EATING.

Meals at One Time Were Regulated by Statute in England.

On Nov. 2, 1336, a law came into force in England for the regulation of meals and continued to have a place on the statute book until 1857. It was designed to check the evils resulting from an excessive use of costly meals and enacted that no one should partake at any place or time (except on specified festivals and holidays) to the number of sixteen days a year of more than two courses, each not consisting of more than two sorts of victuals, either flesh or fish, with the common sorts of pottage, and inexpensive sauce. On named feast days three courses were allowed.

This law was an extension of an ordinance issued by Edward II. in 1315 regulating the meals of his nobles, the greater of whom were allowed in addition to two courses of two kinds of meat a side dish of one sort.

An act of 1363 enacts that servants, artisans and laborers "shall be served to eat and drink once a day of flesh or fish and remnant of other victuals, as of butter, milk and cheese, according to their station in life."—London Telegraph.

Plain Words on Catarrh Cures

Siegrist & Williams' Views

Just at this time of the year the newspapers are filled with advertisements of Catarrh cures one kind or another to such an extent that an Age reporter opened up a talk on the subject with Mr. Siegrist, of Siegrist & Williams. "In all probability," said Mr. Siegrist, "Every one of them can be found on sale in our store. But we cannot guarantee these various remedies; of course they may be meritorious—as to that we cannot say—we buy them from the manufacturers and we certainly would not sell them if we thought they were in any way injurious.

"But," continued Mr. Siegrist, "there is one Catarrh cure we know all about, and that Catarrh cure we back up with our reputation as pharmacists, and with our bona fide guarantee. That remedy is Rexall Mucuo-Tone. We know how Rexall Mucuo-Tone is made, what medicines are used in compounding it and the scrupulous care with which it is manufactured, and we know that it is an honest meritorious remedy, that has cured thousands of chronic sufferers from Catarrh."

"The very first dose of Mucuo-Tone will brace you up, will give you new strength and hope, will convince you that at last you have found a medicine that goes right to the spot and does the work for which it is intended; and with each succeeding dose you will feel better and better, stronger and stronger. You will regain your appetite, will find yourself eating heartily and will feel that your food is doing you good. You will note an increase of blood. Your hands and feet will be warm, instead of cold and clammy. Your nerves will become steady. You will sleep soundly and you will get up in the morning wonderfully refreshed, and despondency will be a thing of the past; and besides," continued Mr. Siegrist, "Rexall Mucuo-Tone will accomplish all this in an astonishingly short time. It makes no difference whether you are just beginning to feel badly or whether you have suffered for years—we say Mucuo-Tone will cure you—just try an out on this statement. If it does not do all that we have claimed for it, we will immediately refund your money." You can get a large trial bottle for fifty cents. Siegrist & Williams, Druggists.

Prompt, Easy Recovery.

The greatest thing in the world — A Mother's Love; the love she lavishes on her children; the love her child should have for her; without this love she could not endure the agonies incident to childbirth; appreciative of this love, Mother's Friend was devised to lessen the pain and anguish of childbirth, that her love might not be strained to the breaking point. Mother's Friend does all this and more—it enables the fond mother to speedily recuperate from the labors of maternity, enables her to regain her lost strength, preserves her youthful lines of beauty, and makes pregnancy her crowning joy without any thorns to mar it.

Mother's Friend

is applied externally, is most harmless in its constancy, most happy in its results, and is of such merit that no case of labor should be conducted without its use. It is a liniment for massage of the abdominal muscles during pregnancy, and by its use their tonicity and power of contraction is greatly enhanced, enabling them to sustain the great strain brought to bear on them at this time. It is Mother's Friend. The name should be enough to recommend it to all who expect to be mothers. Send for free book containing information of priceless value to all expectant mothers. Easter Sunday.

Easter comes this year within two days of as late as it can possibly come—on April 22. Only three times in the last century did it come so late and only twice during the present century will it come so late. In 1886 this crowning feast of the church came on April 24—the latest possible date—in 1890 it fell on April 24 and in 1848 on April 23. In 1943 it will again fall on April 22 and in 2,000, it will again fall on April 22.

New Dentist in Charge.

The office of the Union Patients' dentists is now in charge of Dr. C. F. Stewart of Steubenville, during the illness of Dr. Haverfield, who is slowly improving.

Miss Helen Brown is in charge of the society columns of The Age. Telephone in your social news and personals.

THE CALENDAR

Today—The Christian Endeavor society of the Presbyterian church gives a social this evening at the library.
Mrs. George Bordenkircher entertains the Secret Twelve.
Miss Winifred Hanlon entertains the J. G. T. club.
The Ladies' League meets with Mrs. Shraak.
Social at the Baptist church.
Mr. and Mrs. William Merrell entertain at cards.
The W. R. C. meets at the library.

K. of P. Dance.

About a hundred and fifty Knights of Pythias and friends of the order, enjoyed the hospitality so beautifully extended at the commodious lodge rooms of the order in the Gray building. Cards were played until half past nine o'clock when the tables were cleared away and the dancing began and kept up without cessation until near midnight. The music was furnished by the Saxophone Orchestra under the leadership of Dr. Haight and was an enthusiastic inspiration to the dancers. It is the first time this organization has played for dancing but it is quite safe to predict that it will not be the last. The affair was very successful and a great credit to the committee in charge.

Among the knights present were the following gentlemen who have but recently come to Coshocton and have not yet transferred their membership from their home town.
C. O. Reed, Elmwood, Ind.
Frank Fuhr, Alliance, O.
O. H. Long, Springfield, O.
M. H. Denzer, Wheeling, W. Va.
Ross Hachting, Dresden, O.
Fred Cromer, Findlay, O.

Reception Postponed.

The reception which the Ladies Aid Society of Grace M. E. church had arranged to give to all the ladies of the church on Saturday afternoon has been postponed until next Saturday because of the death of Mrs. Hennel who was secretary of the society.

Party at Roscoe.

Mrs. Alonzo Clark, Mrs. Hooker and Miss Hutchins entertained with a beautiful little tea party on Thursday afternoon at their home in Roscoe their guests being about thirty Coshocton ladies. The early part of the afternoon was devoted to needlework and many were the stitches set. At five o'clock tea was served the guests being seated at three tables spread in the dining room. Each table was a pretty picture with its decorations of exquisite carnations and the menu served was delicious. The affair was thoroughly enjoyed not only by the guests but the hostesses as well.

Wedding at Otego.

A pretty wedding was celebrated between Miss May Bradford and Mr. Joseph Carroll McLaughlin were united in marriage by Rev. O. V. Sharrock.

About fifty guests witnessed the pretty ceremony. Among the out-of-town guests were E. B. Bradford and Miss May Walker of Zanesville, Miss Naomi Allen, and D. L. J. Leeper, Cambridge, Miss Myrtle Bradford of Canton, Misses Nellie and Carrie Platt of West Lafayette, C. W. V., and George McLaughlin of Franklin, Pa. and F. B. Moran of Wellsville, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. McLaughlin will go to Pennsylvania to visit the groom's relatives and will then return to Otego to live.

The groom is associated with his brothers in drilling for oil in the Otego oil field. He has been in Otego for the last two years.

Tea for Mrs. Cochran.

Mrs. James R. Johnson of South Third street entertained with a delightful tea party Thursday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Cochran of Pittsburg, who has been spending the winter with her. The daintily appointed meal was served at a number of small tables arranged through the rooms and covers were laid for the following ladies in addition to the hostess and Mrs. Cochran: Mrs. Hadd Johnson, Mrs. Collier, Mrs. Dawson, Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. Wernette, Mrs. Warner Hay and her guest Miss Bratton of California, Miss Welser, Mrs. K. C. Edwards, Mrs. Evans, Mrs. W. A. Smith, Mrs. E. C. Carr, Mrs. Almack, Mrs. McCoy, Mrs. I. J. Baker, Mrs. D. F. Denman, Miss Whiting of Columbus and Mrs. Finley of Keene.

W. C. T. U. Meeting.

The question of the army canteen which is before congress just now was taken up by the W. C. T. U. at its regular meeting held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Shraak on North Eighth street. Mrs. Charles Magnus was in charge and articles were read by Mrs. Baughman, Mrs. Shraak, Mrs. Kring, and Mrs. B. A. McGinnis. All the ladies took part in the discussion which followed.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks with Mrs. Wright of Walnut street and Mrs. B. A. McGinnis will be the leader.

Personals

Mrs. Richard Holdsworth and daughter Ada, of Conesville, will leave Saturday evening for a month's visit with relatives at Joliet and Decatur, Ill., and other western points.
Mrs. John Shaw returned home Thursday from Goodall, Florida, where she has been for several weeks.
Mr. and Mrs. A. Rhehart were called to Avondale by the serious illness of her father, Moses Miser.

UNCLE SAM'S BOYS ARE ILL

The old saying that troubles never come singly is illustrated by the experiences at the postoffice today.

Of the four city carriers, three are at home sick, likewise one of the two substitutes, leaving one regular carrier and one substitute, and four routes to be covered.

Rural Carrier Will Davis and Dispatching Clerk Clyde Wells bravely jumped into the city carrier service and are doing the best they can with unfamiliar work. It is hoped the public will be patient if a few errors or slight delays should occur.
The carriers who are ill at home are Bert McKee, George Neutse and Judson Wright, and Substitute Frank Davis.

ACCEPTS PASTORATE OF PUEBLO CHURCH

Rev. W. H. Talmage, of South McAlester, I. T., who has been visiting his friend in Ohio for a few days, left on No 25 Wednesday. Since "Harry" as his friends know him, left Coshocton ten years ago he has not only completed the ordinary course of the ology in the Methodist Episcopal church, but has filled some of the prominent pulpits in the country.
He preaches Sunday evening in St. James M. E. Church, Chicago. After acting as State Superintendent of the Colorado Anti-Saloon League for two years, he accepted the First Church of Pueblo, Colorado, and from there he went to Indian Territory, and is now pastor in South McAlester and secretary of the I. A. mission. He is also secretary of the Scottish Rite Masonic bodies of the territory.

STOMACH TROUBLES AND CONSTIPATION.

"Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are the best thing for stomach troubles and constipation I have ever sold," says J. R. Callman, a druggist of Pottsville, Mich. "They are easy to take and always give satisfaction. I tell my customers to try them and if not satisfactory to come back and get their money, but never have had a complaint." For sale by C. E. month and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hubenthal. The family moved to Coshocton while Mrs. Hennel was still quite young and for many years resided on North Eighth street. Her mother still lives there.

Mrs. Hennel became a member of church when she was thirteen years of age and has been a faithful and consistent member of the M. E. congregation ever since. She attended the Coshocton public schools and graduated with high honors in the class of 1886. She possessed a very bright mind and soon after her graduation commenced teaching. She taught in the Coshocton schools for seven years and it was during this useful period of her career that she endeared herself to many children of Coshocton. She seemed to take a special interest in each of her pupils and no better teacher has ever taught in the Coshocton schools.

She was united in marriage to Dr. Hennel May 25, 1893 and is survived by her husband, two little girls, Nellie and Norma, aged ten and three years, respectively, her mother, and two sisters. One of the sisters is Miss Margaret Hubenthal, who lives in Cleveland, and the other Mr. Ed. Hunter, who resides in this city.

Mrs. Hennel's health has been impaired for several years but she became worse a short time ago, and an operation was necessary for her relief. Had not the typhoid fever come she would in all probability have recovered from the operation.

The remains were brought to Coshocton this afternoon and the funeral services will be held at the residence Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

those of Daniel Elving and R. C. Bantam by having been filed earlier.

The result shows that Roscoe too has been growing some since the Federal Census, but not as rapidly as Coshocton. Our dear little sister village had in 1900 a population of 632. While the population of many villages grows less, Roscoe has grown larger.

With the special enumeration of both Coshocton and Roscoe now completed the combined population is 9037. This is a very substantial growth, in fact a much larger percent of gain than is experienced even by other growing towns or cities. It speaks well for Coshocton.

In taking the census of Coshocton and Roscoe, Special Enumerator Severns called at every house and got the information from a member of the family within. In a very few instances, about a dozen, there was no response to his repeated rapping at the doors, and in those instances the number of occupants of the house was learned from the near neighbors. Every house was visited by Mr. Severns, there was no hurrying or skipping and none were missed. The population of Coshocton and Roscoe was carefully, thoroughly and correctly counted by Mr. Severns, as stated in his affidavits, and that the public and the outside world may know that we have largely grown since the Federal census, is the universal gratification which is afforded by the enterprise of The Age.

Hymel, the Only Cure for Catarrh Which Returns Your Money if Not Satisfactory.

It is seldom that a druggist has enough faith in the medicine he sells even when prepared by himself to be willing to refund the money if it does not cure; but Hymel has cured so many cases of catarrh among the customers of C. E. Anderson's that he offers to refund the money to all who use it and report that they are not satisfied.

Hymel is the simplest and most convenient remedy for catarrh ever offered to the public. Breathed through an inhaler so small that it can be carried in the vest pocket, for a few minutes four times a day, it will absolutely kill all the germs of catarrh and cure the disease. Catarrh cannot exist where Hymel is used. It has a two-fold action, killing all the germs in the air passages and lungs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

Some of the most prominent men and women of the country have gladly given testimonials to Hymel. After seeking relief in vain for years this wonderful remedy has cured them of catarrh, and it is no wonder that they want others to know of it.

D. O. Groff, editor of the Nicholasville, Ky., News, writes, "Ever since I was a young man I have been troubled with catarrh, and in later years the disease became unbearable. Hymel has helped me so much that I wish to publicly speak of its merits, so that others afflicted as I have been may be relieved."

trick for me to satisfy my curiosity as to what he was doing.
"On the opposite side of the river in the shade of a clump of willows, standing in the shallow water was a fine looking Jersey cow lazily switching her tail at the flies, her neck outstretched, her nose extended and slowly chewing her cud. True to life, Christy had her transferred to his tablet. When I asked him for the tablet he very reluctantly handed it out fearing I would not approve of his artistic act."

"I was strongly impressed with the evidence of his talent and quickly assured him of the same. He was pleased I also told his father about it and suggested that he ought to educate his son along that line. His father remarked that if he had the means he would gladly do so."

"Later in the year when we were discussing United States history and the story of the life of our martyred Garfield, I told the class of having visited the year before the little building in which Mr. Garfield taught school in his early manhood, located not over ten miles farther down the river. When I visited the house it was occupied by a coal miner. The class became interested in my story and in trying to describe it I stated that it looked much like a certain small building near by with which all the class were familiar. Young Christy's pencil 'got busy' and soon I saw he had a pretty fair sketch of the house made famous by the martyred Garfield."

"Later Mr. Christy expressed a desire to see the famous little school house with its primitive surroundings. A trip was arranged, and he sketched it. This sketch was sent to Senator John Sherman, who wrote Christy a nice letter expressing great appreciation both of the sketch and the youthful artist's skill. The newspaper took it up and I have been told that by this means the young artist attracted the attention of some well-to-do relatives in New York City and that they assisted him in the pursuit of his studies in that city, thus bringing him to the notice of the leading publishers."

"Not being an artist I cannot critically discuss his work. His talent is much in evidence. I have noticed in the series of illustrations 'The American Girl,' published in the Ladies Home Journal, some characters that might be seen in the vicinity of Mr. Christy's boyhood home, and they are so true to life that I cannot mistake the artist's ideal."

COURT HOUSE

The jury in the case of Hagelbarger vs. The Novelty Advertising company brought in a verdict for the defendant Friday afternoon.

The case of Stilwell vs. Pash is now on the tapis. It involves the purchase price and rent of a piece of property in Coshocton.

Viewers Report.

The viewers appointed on the vacation of a road petitioned for by William Stricker et al. met in the surveyor's office Friday and reported in favor of vacating a part of the road. Staats & Williams represented the petitioners and Pomerene & Pomerene those opposed to the change.

Case Settled.

The attachment suit of Pigman and Darrah vs. Homer Maurer, which has been pending in Squire Williams' court has been settled by amicable agreement. Judge Roche and L. N. Staats were attorneys for the plaintiff.

Divorce Case.

The divorce case of Aaron E. Hurst vs. Carrie Hurst is set for trial in probate court this afternoon. W. A. Himebaugh represents the plaintiff.

OLD AGE
THE BEST PART OF LIFE
 For Women Facing Through
 Change of Life

Providence has allotted us each at least seventy years in which to fulfill our mission in life, and it is generally our own fault if we die prematurely.

Mrs. Mary Koehne

Nervous exhaustion invites disease. This statement is the positive truth. When everything becomes a burden and you cannot walk a few blocks without excessive fatigue, and you break out into perspiration easily, and your face flushes, and you grow excited and shaky at the least provocation, and you cannot bear to be crossed in anything, you are in danger; your nerves have given out; you need building up at once!

To build up woman's nervous system and during the period of change of life we know of no better medicine than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here is an illustration. Mrs. Mary L. Koehne, 371 Garfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes: "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for years in my family and it never disappoints; so when I felt that I was nearing the change of life I commenced treatment with it. I took it all about six bottles and it did me a great deal of good. It stopped my dizzy spells, pains in my back and the headaches with which I had suffered for months before taking the Compound. I feel that if it had not been for this great medicine for women that I should not have been alive to-day. It is splendid for women, old or young, and will surely cure all female disorders."

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick and ailing women to write her for advice. Her great experience is at their service, free of cost.

OHIO NEWS

[By Telegraph to The Age.]

Students in Trouble.
 New Haven, Conn., Jan. 27.—Two Yale students, Joseph E. Lowes, Jr., of Dayton, O., and James P. Kinson of Cincinnati, both seniors in the Sheffield scientific school, were arrested on charges of breach of the peace in connection with a street affray in which George B. Tennant of Waterbury suffered a fracture of the skull on the night of Jan. 14. Tennant, who is a post-graduate student of Yale, has been in the Yale infirmary since he received his injury, and is now expected to recover. According to Captain Cowles of the detective bureau both of the arrested men admitted their connection with the affair. They were released on bonds of $500 each and will be given a hearing later. Kinson is captain of the Yale gun club and first subcaptain on the varsity football team last fall.

Carnation Day.
 Chicago, Jan. 27.—A resolution to officially recognize "Carnation day," Jan. 29, in honor of President McKinley's birthday, was passed by the American Carnation society at the closing session of the fourteenth annual convention of the organization here. The board of directors was also authorized to send a floral emblem, consisting of carnations, to Canton, O., in behalf of the society, on that day. The following officers to serve during the coming year were elected: President, Peter Fisher, Elms, Mass.; secretary, Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, Pa.; treasurer, F. M. Dornier, Lafayette, Ind.

Explosion Wrecks Building.
 New Bremen, O., Jan. 27.—The accumulation of natural gas from a leak in meter in the Dierker building resulted in a terrific explosion completely wrecking the building and injuring 12 people, two of them being in a serious condition. The front and side walls were blown out. Contents of the building were hurled hundreds of feet by the explosion. The loss is $40,000.

Mine Damaged by Fire.
 Gloucester, O., Jan. 27.—A fire in the shaft of the Continental coal company's No. 2 mine caused a loss of at least $50,000. Origin unknown. There was only one of the 300 miners employed in the mine and he escaped through the exit of No. 6 mine.

Mayor Johnson Ill.
 Cleveland, O., Jan. 27.—Mayor Tom L. Johnson, who has been ill for some days with the grip, has taken a turn for the worse. His friends fear pneumonia.

Second Railway Legislation.
 Topeka, Kan., Jan. 27.—The house passed the senate concurrent resolution authorizing the Kansas delegation to appear before the speedy passage of a bill empowering the Interstate Commerce commission to determine reasonable passenger and freight rates.

CONGRESS

ing the assignment of retired army officers to active service with militia organizations. The effect of the change is to relieve General Miles from its application. Mr. Gallinger and others criticized the amendment regulating the sale of army transports, claiming that the use of government vessels forced unfair competition upon the owners of private vessels. Mr. Hale condemned the operation of the general staff system in the army, and said he would oppose any effort to establish a similar system in the navy.

Injunctions in Labor Disputes.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—An important measure, which is the result of conferences held during the past two months between President Roosevelt, Attorney General Moody, Commissioner of Corporations Garfield and representatives of labor organizations and corporate interests, has been introduced in the house of representatives by Representative Jenkins of Wisconsin, chairman of the judiciary committee. It provides that in labor disputes an injunction shall not be issued until opportunity shall have been afforded the adverse party to the proceedings to be heard by the court, and is intended as a substitute for measures pending in congress. The measure provides that immediate notice shall be given to the adverse party, the time of the hearing to be within the discretion of the court, but in all cases to be as soon as possible.

Exchange Commission's Work.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—President Roosevelt transmitted to the senate the final report of the commission on international exchange, with a letter from Assistant Secretary of State Loomis commenting on the report. In his message the president says: "The work of the commission has assisted greatly in the establishment of the new monetary systems of the Philippines, Mexico and the republic of Panama. The work done in China has been very helpful to that government. Such improvements in the monetary systems of the silver-using countries bring them into closer connection with the gold standard countries and are of very great benefit to the trade of the United States, and every effort should be made to encourage such reforms."

Clerk Suspended.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—Charles L. Planton, for many years a clerk in the office of the auditor of the treasury for the postoffice department, has been suspended pending the outcome of his trial in Missouri on a charge of accepting money from private interests in connection with his work of reporting on proposed sites for federal buildings in several Missouri cities and towns several years ago.

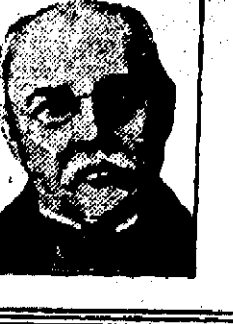

Democrats Support Roosevelt.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—The agricultural appropriation bill was considered in the house, but the debate turned principally upon the topic of restricting railroads in the matter of freight rates, the Hepburn bill forming the basis of the discussion. Mr. Williams of Mississippi said that the Democratic party was committed to views such as were expressed by the president in his message to congress.

Post Official Resigned.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—Nolen L. Chew of Indiana, deputy auditor of the postoffice department, tendered his resignation, to take effect at the discretion of the president, in order to return to private business. Charles S. Siler of Evansville, Ind., was selected to succeed him.

Presented to Smithsonian.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—It was announced that among the important gifts recently made to the Smithsonian institution is the botanical library and herbarium of Captain John Donnell Smith of Baltimore, which is estimated to be worth $30,000. The Smithsonian authorities consider this the most valuable botanical gift ever made to that institution. The herbarium consists of over 100,000 sheets containing many valuable sets of plants from remote parts of the world, the most valuable part of the herbarium being that pertaining to South America, which, it is said, is believed by American botanists to be the most valuable Central American collection in existence.

Wrecked by Dynamite.
 Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 27.—An explosion of dynamite at the Shoenberger plant of the American Steel and Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, brought painful injuries to 40 persons, temporarily disabled 15 residences and broke at least 2,500 windows. In a shed near the plant the company had 300 pounds of dynamite stored to be used as required in the breaking up of the large ore piles. A few moments before the explosion, it is said, an Italian was seen to enter the shed. The only remains found of him were portions of the trousers, vest and shirt hanging to telegraph wires in the vicinity.

WHAT THE TEACHER SHOULD BE
 By Dr. WILLIAM MAXWELL, Superintendent of Schools, New York City

A TEACHER should have the ability to pick out essentials and DISREGARD the other things. That is the only solution of the problem of the so called overcrowded courses of study. THE FAULT LIES ONLY WITH THE TEACHERS. Those in authority should discover a person's qualifications before they give permission to teach. Applicants for a teacher's license should be persons who intend TO DEVOTE THEIR LIFE TO TEACHING. It is all too frequent that young men take up teaching simply as a makeshift until something can be found that will bring in more money. And it is not unusual to find young women who think that they will teach a year or two until the right young men come along to take them from the burden and care of the schoolroom. Teaching is a high and holy calling, and no one should enter it unless willing to devote all of his or her energy, soul and time to it.

No work, I presume, is more nerve racking than teaching, and it needs good health as well as strong will and strong mental powers. A person afflicted with serious physical or nervous trouble is by just so much incapacitated to do good work as a teacher. A TEACHER SHOULD BE THE MODEL OF HIS CLASS. If he is irritable he is not the proper person to teach children; if he is a cripple he cannot lead in the exercises, and by just so much he fails in his ability as a teacher.

Sound, extensive, accurate scholarship is the second quality that a man or woman should have who intends to teach. The public schools are established for the purpose not merely of giving the elements of a literary education, BUT TO DEVELOP THE FULL-EST EFFICIENCY, individual and social, of every citizen. This is realized by bringing each child into harmony with his environment. His mind must be brought into contact with the great possessions of the race—our intellectual inheritances. However, it is not enough that a teacher knows something of these inheritances. He must possess industry, courage and, above all, SIMPLE MINDED DEVOTION to duty.

Professional training should also be acquired before the active work of teaching begins. The applicant should be an expert physical trainer, that he or she may lead the exercises with which the intellectual tasks of the children must be relieved. A teacher should understand children's games—not only theoretically, BUT PRACTICALLY. There is no surer way to get in close touch with your pupils than by engaging in their games.

The time has passed when all education was considered to come from the printed page. Now it is the theory that the hand and eye, as well as the mind, must also be trained. Therefore the teacher of today should be an EXPERT in manual training. It is essential for a man teacher especially to be at once an athlete and a mechanic.

The best use to which a teacher's study of psychology can be put is to a keen, accurate observation of children. He should know how to test a pupil's sight and hearing. He should be able to tell if any special physical exercises are harmful or beneficial. He should have the capacity to gauge a pupil's power of perception, retentiveness, judgment and reasoning. He should possess the insight to discover SPECIAL APTITUDES in children that he may advise them as to their future life work. It is my favorite theory that schools would be of more economic worth if TEACHERS could advise the pursuits for scholars to follow.

THERE IS NO ECONOMIC WASTE COMPARED WITH THE WASTE OCCASIONED BY SETTING PEOPLE AT WORK THEY ARE NOT FITTED FOR.

The Best Method of Voice Preservation
 By ADELINA PATTI (Baroness Cederstrom)

PEOPLE who cultivate the voice have widely different ideas on what constitutes the best method of its preservation. If I gave lessons I should cultivate THE MIDDLE NOTES, and the voice of the singer would be good at the age of a hundred. The whole harm to a voice comes in pushing it up and down, in trying to add extra notes to its compass.

As to the length of time to be devoted to study, I myself do not give more than fifteen or twenty minutes to it daily, AND THESE FEW MINUTES I DEVOTE TO SCALES.

It was my brother, Ettore Barili, who laid the foundation of my singing, and his method today is taught by my nephew, Alfred Barili. My brother-in-law, Mr. Strakosch, taught me certain embellishments and cadenzas, but it was to Ettore Barili that I owed the foundation as well as the finish of my vocal equipment. With him I studied solfeggii, trills and scales. The chromatic scales came naturally. I think I was trilling when I came into the world.

My golden rule in singing is to spare myself until the voice is needed AND THEN NEVER TO GIVE IT ALL OUT. Put it in the bank. I do not push my voice for the pleasure of the moment. If you are prodigal of your powers at such times, the next time you wish to be generous you cannot.

There is an old Italian proverb that I hold fast to as my guide, "Who goes slowly goes safely; who goes safely goes far." I have always followed that course in the use of my voice. Consequently I have it at command when I need it. I never sang when I was not well enough; neither did I sing WHEN I WAS DOUBTFUL of the condition of my voice. I should never sing when I am not "fit for the use of it."

RICH OR POOR—YOU NEED TEETH
 No one, old enough to know better, should be neglectful of that most vital and useful organ of the human system—the teeth—the very guards to the gateway of health.

Wrecked by Dynamite.
 Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 27.—An explosion of dynamite at the Shoenberger plant of the American Steel and Wire company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation, brought painful injuries to 40 persons, temporarily disabled 15 residences and broke at least 2,500 windows. In a shed near the plant the company had 300 pounds of dynamite stored to be used as required in the breaking up of the large ore piles. A few moments before the explosion, it is said, an Italian was seen to enter the shed. The only remains found of him were portions of the trousers, vest and shirt hanging to telegraph wires in the vicinity.

CASTORIA

DIED AT WASHINGTON.
 The Mother of the Turkish Minister Passes Away.
 Washington, Jan. 27.—Neerin Hanoon, mother of Chekib Bey, minister of Turkey in this country, is dead at the Turkish legation in this city. She was about 65 years of age and belonged to a noble Circassian family. She was educated in Constantinople and there she married, at an early age, Sureya Pacha, the father of Chekib Bey, a vizier of the empire. After the death of her husband, Sureya Pacha, 25 years ago, Neerin Hanoon retired from social life to devote herself entirely to her only son. Since then she had not left Constantinople except to accompany her son and her two grandsons to Washington, where for the last three years she has led a life wholly devoted to her family.

Claims She Was Hypnotized.
 Chicago, Jan. 27.—Allegation of mesmeric influence entered into the case of "Bluebeard" John Hoch. Mrs. Henry Fink of Aurora, Ill., one of Hoch's many wives, charged him with having mesmerized her into the union. Mrs. Fink declared that under the influence of the mysterious German she had consented to marry him, after a five-minute's courtship. A trunk full of books on hypnotism and mesmerism were left behind by Hoch when he disappeared from Aurora. Three days after the marriage, having learned he was on the verge of being exposed as having left a wife in Cleveland, O., he fled to Cheboygan, Mich. The Aurora marriage took place in 1902. The bride, Mrs. Fink, is about 60 years old.

Fund For Strikers.
 Liverpool, Jan. 27.—At a conference of representatives of labor organizations of the United Kingdom having a total membership of 900,000 resolutions of sympathy with the St. Petersburg strikers were adopted. The conference also inaugurated a relief fund for the benefit of the Russian strikers. Resolutions were also adopted expressing sympathy with the German coal miners.

Freight Trains Snowbound.
 Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 27.—Railroad traffic in this locality has been paralyzed by the storm. Fifty-three freight trains are reported to be snowbound on the Pennsylvania railroad between here and Philadelphia. Six large snow plows were sent from Harrisburg to open up the road. Crews from Harrisburg are being "deadheaded" to Altoona to bring trains to this city.

Settlement Sought.
 Moscow, Jan. 27.—Workmen and masters are negotiating for a settlement of their differences. Several firms already have offered an advance in wages which would bring up the average earnings of their workmen to $16 per month and lodgings. One firm has offered to knock off one hour from the legal working day of 11 hours, but this is a burning question on which the majority of the masters are unwilling or unable to agree to concessions.

North Sea Incident.
 Paris, Jan. 27.—The international commission to inquire into the North sea incident resumed its sittings with diminished attendance and interest owing to the many fishermen witnesses repeating practically the same story. Captain Whiston of the trawer Alma described the terrible commotion of the Russian warship. Twelve shots across the bow were going the Alma when the Russian vessel was sighted.

VESSEL HELD.
 Deaths at Sea the Subject of Official Investigation.
 New York, Jan. 27.—Ten steerage passengers died at sea on the Red line steamer Vaderland, which arrived here from Antwerp on Jan. 24. The cause of death was given as congestion of the lungs and pneumonia. The vessel is held at Quarantine. The 700 passengers were not permitted to land. When the commissioner of immigration here received word that Health Officer Doty had taken this step he telegraphed to the authorities at Washington as to what he should do with the steerage passengers down at Ellis island. The reply was to turn them over to the health authorities. Four departments are now conducting investigations.

Family Murdered.
 Tampa, Fla., Jan. 27.—The little farming community of Wauchula, in Polk county, was plunged into excitement at the discovery of a crime equalling in horror the tragedy at Statesboro, Ga., last year. The home of John Kirby, a farmer, who moved there last October from Blount county, Ala., was found in ashes, and in the smoldering ruins were found the bodies of Kirby, his wife and four children, ranging in age from a boy of 13 to an infant of one year. An investigation was made, which resulted in the conclusion that the entire family had been murdered and a torch applied to the dwelling. The skulls of each of the victims except that of Mrs. Kirby had been crushed in by some heavy weapon.

Town is Silent.
 Kovno, Jan. 7.—This town is calm. Some factories reopened, but they were closed later. The streetcars have stopped running. Troops are patrolling the streets but there has been no disorder.

CRAMPTON CONCERT WAS A RARE MUSICAL TREAT

Fourth Entertainment of The Course Packs Methodist Church With Appreciative Audience.

The George Crampton Concert company was given a genuine ovation at Grace church on Thursday evening by one of the most magnificent audiences which ever assembled in that spacious auditorium. And a more delightful concert Coshocton people have never had the pleasure of listening to. Each member of the company is an artist and the pleasure they gave their hearers was manifested in the repeated encores which were given—in one instance Mr Crampton was recalled twice.

The company is composed of Mr George Crampton, basso cantante, Madame Alice Myron, contralto; Herr Gossweiler, cellist; Mrs Blanche Sage-Holcombe, pianist, and is one of the best concert companies on the road.

A few Coshocton people had had the pleasure of hearing Mrs. Holcomb and Mr Crampton before but it was the first appearance of the company in Coshocton and their return is eagerly anticipated.

Mr. Crampton's voice is magnificent and the wide range of his selections showed his wonderful versatility. In dramatic singing he seems at his best but the simpler songs and ballads which he sang were equally enthusiastically received. "Figaro's Song" from Rossini's "The Barber of Seville" was sung with the skill of a master as was "The Roamer" which he gave in place of the "Bedouin Love Song" which was on the program. "Oh, Hear the Wild Wind Blow" and "The Sweet Story of Old" were each sung in a way which will not soon be forgotten. For one of the numerous encores which he received he sang a charming little song about a girl who "was so queer." It is one of the newest things in Mr Crampton's repertoire and like everything else he sang was received with a burst of enthusiastic applause.

Madame Myron likewise captivated her audience with a voice of unusual sweetness and a gracious charm of manner. While she calls Iowa home now she was born in Ohio and the good old Buckeye state is proud to claim her. Her selections were all beautiful and showed to great advantage the wonderful range and power of her voice. She also possesses to an unusual degree that quality which the French call "sympatie" and which is one of the untranslatable words of the language. Her first number was the aria "My Heart is Weary" from Nadeshda and later on in the program she sang Nevin's "Oh That We Two Were Maying" and "May Day" by Walthew. The undoubted power of her voice was shown most emphatically in the last number which she sang with Mr. Crampton. It was a scene and love duet from Pagliacci, Madame Myron singing the role of Nedda and Mr. Crampton that of Silvio. The two voices blended beautifully and the exquisite harmony of the whole was contributed to by the cello obligato played by Herr Gossweiler and the accompaniment rendered by Mrs. Holcomb. It made a beautiful finale to the delightful concert.

Herr Gossweiler's numbers on the cello were played with all the taste and skill of the born artist. He is a native of Switzerland and the grandeur and beauty of the scenery of his home land seems to find fitting expression in his music. He fairly made the cello talk and was enthusiastically applauded and encored. The "Caprice Hongroise" composed by Dukler was especially beautiful.

Much of the success of the concert was due to the accompaniments which were played so wonderfully well by Mrs. Holcomb. Her technique is magnificent and her touch betrays not only the skill of a practiced musician but the soul of a born artist. In addition to playing the accompaniments she had one solo number, Greig's "To Spring" and Goldbeck's "Song of Love." They were both brilliantly done and the dainty little selection she played for an encore showed yet another phase of her many sided genius.

The undoubted talent—indeed it is more than talent, it is genius—of these four young people made the concert an evening of rare pleasure. They have all ready won a high place for themselves in the world of music and their progress will always be watched with pleasure by the friends they made in Coshocton.

This concert was the fourth number of the Peoples' Lecture course. The next will be Col H. W. J. Ham who will lecture at Grace church February 24.

ANOTHER HUNTER ARRESTED AT ADAMSVILLE

Adamsville and the immediate vicinity seems to be fertile ground for the game wardens this winter. Five men have been arrested for alleged illegal hunting there in less than two months. The last one is Frank Wisecarver, who was brought into the court of Justice John A. Green Wednesday morning by Deputy State Warden J. C. Porterfield.

Wisecarver is charged with illegally hunting rabbits near Adamsville on January 2, 1905. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued for one week, the case to be tried by a jury. Wisecarver's bond was placed at $100 and it was immediately furnished.

The cases against the last two of the quartet of Coshocton men who were arrested by Game Warden McGill last December will come up again Friday—Zanesville Signal.
